Vol. 3—No. 85 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, APRIL 9, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Voters Must Decide for Themselves The City's Future

FOR the past three days we have endeavored to enthuse our readers over the city election which is to be held tomorrow.

No matter who or what you vote for, it is your duty as a citizen to cast your ballot. Glendale of the future will be affected either in a beneficial manner, or otherwise, by the way you vote.

There are seven candidates in the field for City Council. Two of these seven are to be elected. Who these two are will be known by Wednesday. You should share in their election.

There are no special issues in question in this election.

ALL THE men up for election are well known in Glendale. It is just a case of selecting the two who are best qualified to give us honest endeavor, backed by experience.

We have gone over the records of the different candidates and can find nothing that they stand for which would affect the special life of Glendale in a detrimental way.

WE WANT to again advise voting NO on Amendments Numbers 1 and 4.

Amendment No. 1 enables the city to embark in new lines of business, which can be handled more efficiently through private ownership; it also is liable to increase our taxes.

Amendment No. 4 cuts down the limit of time for the passing of ordinances from five to two days. It should be defeated by all means. The other amendments are not radical and should be voted favorably.

IN Proposition No. 7 the City Council asks permission to sell to the American Legion a piece of ground, which was formerly used for a reservoir. This is not of value for use by the city for any purpose and the council should be authorized to sell it to the Legion. The Glendale Post of the American Legion is not selfish in seeking this ground for they propose to share it with other patriotic bodies. Every citizen should vote YES on this proposition.

* * *

PROPOSITION No. 8 is for the purchase of ground for airport and water purposes. This ground was originally purchased by the council, but a recent court decision has held up the proposition and the backers of the proposition are afraid it will be lost to the city, unless the voters authorize the purchase.

NEW CRUISER MAKES HIGH SPEED OFF COAST

[By Associated Press]

SAN DIEGO, April 9.—The new light cruiser Omaha made an average speed of 34.1 knots, or more than 38 miles an hour for more than nine hours on a trial run off the California coast, according to word received at the Eleventh Naval District headquarters here.

MAYOR ROBINSON MAKES STATEMNET

Declares Fertilizer Plant Project Will Have No Odor

The following statemen was issued today by Mayor Spencer Robinson upon the airport, proposition No. 8:

"It has come to my notice that the claim is being made by a small group of opponents of the airport and water bonds to be voted on as proposition No. 8 in tomorrow's election, that the liquid chemical fertilizer to be made by the proposed Pep Chemical Co. plant will have an extremely offensive odor and thereby prove of serious detriment to the adjacent community. I wish personally and also as mayor of Glendale to absolutely refute such assertion or intimation as I thoroughly investigated the matter and am assured there is no offensive odor either in its manufacture or use and that furthermore the city council's tentative arrangement with Mr. Rasmus of the Pep company specifically stipulates that the manufacture in question shall entail no offensive odor. The lease would be positive in this respect.

"I have personally seen hte direct beneficial results on plant life from the use of the "Pep" product and believe the city will gain a fine industry if proposition No. 8 carries.

(Signed) "SPENCER ROBINSON."

SHRINE CLUB MUSICAL IS BIG SUCCESS

Dinner Dance in Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse Well Attended:

BRILLIANT PROGRAM

Singers Given Enthusiastic Encores; Band Furnishes Dance Music

The Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse at Lexington drive and Central avenue was the mecca Saturday night of members of the Glendale Shrine club and their ladies at a most brilliant social affair in the form of a dinner dance and musical. There were about 150 nobles and their ladies present. Through the courtesy of H. L. Leavitt of Mecca temple, New York city, a musical program of unusual excellence was given by a group of prominent artists during the dinner and also between dances.

In greeting the nobles and their ladies D. Ripley Jackson, president of the Shrine club, expressed the aim of the club members in putting on something that would equal the efforts of the Tuesday Afternoon club women in building their magnificent club home. Mr. Leavitt was then introduced and took charge of the program, which included numbers by the following artists:

Mme. Theodora Wisniewska, accompanied at the piano by her teacher, Mme. Felicia Romanoska Polish prima donna, was most enthusiastically received for her renditions of "Vespri Siciliani" (Verdi) and "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville" (Rossini). Harry Nielsen demonstrated his mastery of the piano in playing "Love Song, No. 3" (Liszt) and "Waltz Etude" (Saint-Saens). Miss Iva Hanners, lyric soprano, although still in her teens, is the possessor of a very promising voice and delighted the audience with her interpretation of selections from "Madame Butterfly" (Puccini). Miss Hanners and Elia Faggioli, well known dramatic tenor, next sang a duet from "Faust," which was very beautiful. Miss Marie Oliver of Glendale, who has a very charming voice, sang "Sing, Sing, Birds on the Wing" (Nutting) and "Forgotten" (Cowles).

Quite a sensation was created by the entrance of the Shrine club band members, playing "Hail, hail the Gang's all Here." Later in the evening the Shrine club orchestra furnished music for dancing. Among the other musical treats of the evening was the excellent singing of Harry Hahn, baritone soloist, who gave "The Son of the Desert Am I" (Phillips), "Home Roads" (Carpenter), "On the Road to Mandalay" (Speaks), and "In the Garden of My Heart." Mr. Hahn has a beautiful and powerful voice, which he used to advantage.

Henry Cantor, of Glendale, who is a member of the De Lara Grand Opera company, sang "Celeste Aida" (Verdi); "Dreams" (Tosti) and also selections from "Rigoletto" (Verdi). A duet from "Carmen" by Miss Hanners and Mr. Faggioli completed the program.

Dinner was served at 7:30 o'clock by members of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who did themselves proud. Table decorations were of marigolds and sprays of baby rose buds. Dancing continued until midnight, when the guests departed, complimenting Mr. Jackson, Mr. Leavitt and the Tuesday club members on the most delightful evening they have had in some time.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS CLEAN UP ROUTINE

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors, held Friday evening, practically all routine business was cleaned up. The personnel of standing committees already appointed was confirmed and a number of new committees were named.

Tuesday noon the directors will meet again for whatever business may come up.

CONCERT POSTPONED

The band concert which was to have been given Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of Glendale high, has been postponed. This is the last week of the quarter and students and instructors are unusually busy. Report cards will be given out Friday.

GLENDALE DENTAL SOCIETY EFFECTS REORGANIZATION

To Take in San Fernando Valley; Elects Officers for 1923

A reorganization of the Glendale Dental society, a branch of the Los Angeles county and Southern California society, was effected at a meeting held Friday evening in the offices of Dr. W. B. Walker in the Ralphs building.

Dr. Roy V. Hogue acted as temporary chairman and Dr. E. L. Eames as temporary secretary.

Officers elected for the remainder of 1923 were: President, Dr. J. P. Luccock; vice president, Dr. C. R. Lusby; second vice president, Dr. Fay G. Stone; secretary-treasurer, Dr. W. B. Walker.

This society will include the entire San Fernando valley. Its purpose is purely educational for the advancement of the profession. It will have two meetings per month.

Committees were appointed and work outlined with a view to keeping right up to the minute in scientific and clinical work.

The society will go in a body April 17 to attend the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Dental society. The next meeting of the local society will be held April 26.

EDUCATORS TO AID HI CORNER STONE LAYING

Distinguished Teachers to Be Present at Ceremony on Wednesday

Distinguished guests who are to take part in the ceremonies connected with the laying of the corner stone of the new high school plant at Broadway and Verdugo road, Wednesday, will include Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools, who will be a speaker; Dr. Moore, head of the University of California, Southern Branch; Dr. Baird, president of Occidental, and representatives of all the classes that have been graduated since 1904 and including classes now in attendance on the school. These will all make deposits in the capacious box which will be sealed behind the corner stone.

The musical part of the program will be furnished by a chorus composed of boys and girls of the Glee clubs, directed by Mrs. Florence Parker. They will sing "Land of Hope and Glory" (Elgar), "America Triumphant" (Demarest), and "Praise the Lord," (Saint-Saens). The girls will probably be costumed alike in white skirts and middies.

The stone is to be laid at the northwest corner of the wing of the central building.

Handsome invitations to attend the exercises are being sent to the special guests by the board of trustees.

BURBANK ROTARY CLUB TO RECEIVE ITS CHARTER

Tonight the newly organized Rotary club of Burbank will receive its charter and as it will be a great occasion for the club, guests from other clubs will be entertained at a dinner and program which will be given at the Sunset Canyon clubhouse. Glendale's Rotary club, which sponsored this organization, will be well represented at the dinner. Reservations have been made by the following Rotarians and their ladies: Roy Kent, George Bentley, J. Herbert Smith, C. C. Cooper, Rev. Ernest Ford, Ed Hewitt, Val Hollister, George Karr, George Moyse, Ed Phillips, Thomas D. Watson, Dr. Fay Stone and others.

GLENDALE TO HONOR FATHER O'NEILL AT FAREWELL BANQUET

Big Reception Planned at Tuesday Afternoon Club for Wednesday Evening to Be Attended by Prominent Speakers of the City

FOUNDER OF THE HOLY FAMILY CHURCH

Accommodations Arranged for 350 at Dinner Which Will Follow Public Leave-taking of First Catholic Priest in Glendale

Plans for the banquet and farewell reception to the Rev. James S. O'Neill, at the Tuesday Afternoon club on Wednesday evening, are fast nearing completion. Father O'Neill, who for more than sixteen years has been the pastor of the Holy Family church of Glendale, will leave this week to take charge of St. Clara's church at Oxnard.

Friends of Father O'Neill, members of the Holy Family parish and hundreds of non-Catholics have united to pay a tribute of love and respect to a churchman who has taken such a signal part in the upbuilding of Glendale, and to share the joy that has come to him through a well earned promotion.

A banquet at 7 o'clock will precede the public reception. There will be accommodations for only 300 at the dinner, and the committee in charge will grant reservations to those who first apply. These reservations may be made through a committee which includes Mrs. Bray, Mrs. Vogel, Mrs. C. E. Norton, Mrs. Thomas Ratigan, Mrs. Jacob Hartman and Mrs. William Smith, nearly all of whom can be reached by telephone. Tickets for the banquet also may be obtained at Salmacia's music store, 109 North Brand boulevard, near Broadway.

Announcement of the list of speakers will be made tomorrow. Public officials of Glendale, many prominent business men and other friends of Father O'Neill will be among those who will join in the big testimonial.

The reception committee will include: Mr. and Mrs. James F. Degnan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Heustis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. John Tuohey, Mr. and Mrs. J. Zimmer, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. James Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ratigan, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. George McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Yale, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Echols, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse E. Smith.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hennes, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Curran, Mr. and Mrs. William Lawlor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salmacia, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Norton, Dr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Stiles, Mr. and Mrs. Rapp, Mr. and Mrs. Brasher, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Noehle, Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Neill Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hogan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Machtoff.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eck, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Moes, Mrs. Bray, Mrs. Vogel, Miss Dorothea Vogel, Miss Ada Gles, Miss Margaret Sharpe, Mrs. Meck, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Kanoche, Miss Ruth Tuohey, Miss Boechler, Miss Margaret Studebaker, Miss McHale, Mrs. Soules, Miss Viola Yorba, Mrs. McGowan, Miss Katherine Farrell, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Adam Fangman, Leo McMahon, Miss Margaret McCormick and Mrs. Brummel.

TUESDAY MEMBERS SHOULD VOTE SAYS MRS. CAMPBELL

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, is urging the women of that organization to go to the polls and vote on Tuesday. She says: "I am asking the ladies of the Tuesday Afternoon club to avail themselves of the privilege of casting their votes in Glendale. As a club we should stand for the better government of our home town, and if they do not go out and vote, they will have no right to complain if the men they prefer are not chosen."

THE SAN FERNANDO BOULEVARD FOLKS MEET

Directors of the San Fernando Boulevard association met Friday night and made plans for the celebration which will attend the turning on of the ornamental lights on that thoroughfare, which it is expected will take place Saturday evening, April 21. The celebration will include a street dance, carnival and program, full particulars of which will be announced later.

PARIS, April 9.—Five ministers of the Poincare cabinet, speaking in various parts of France, told the French that the Ruhr would be evacuated only when Germany had fulfilled her reparations obligations.

PARLIAMENTARY SECTION SCORES TRIUMPH

Concert of Saturday Evening Proves Fine Treat

The concert given in the auditorium of the Tuesday Afternoon club Saturday night by local artists under the auspices of the Parliamentary Law section, proved a treat. It was in part a recital by pupils of Mrs. Virginia Freeman and served to introduce talent new to some of those present, the pupils being Miss Lura Jane Burris, Harold Trefry and Miss Helen Sayre, who has already made a very favorable impression on Glendale. She and Ruth Olshausen dressed alike in the old-fashioned gowns that are now in style, gave old songs in a maner that delighted all hearers. Their voices blend exquisitely and it was a thoroughly artistic performance, from a musical and dramatic viewpoint.

Miss Burris has a high soprano voice that promises to carry her far and Mr. Trefry in certain registers has a voice of great sweetness. He was especially good in the encore numbers, "Me an' Mah Little Banjo," and in the duet, "Piscatori" (Gubussi), sung with Miss Burris.

All the singers were warmly encored. Miss Burris singing "In June."

The old songs interpreted by Miss Sayre and Mrs. Olshausen, included "The Nightingale," "Tell Me That You Love Me," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "Little Alabama Coon." Mrs. Roberta Young was the accompanist of the evening.

Harold Brewster, head of the dramatic department at Glendale high contributed readings which displayed him at his best. He is especially successful in depicting elderly men, but is too talented to concentrate on that sort of characterization. The audience displayed its enjoyment of his work in no uncertain manner and would have been glad to have more of him.

The other two artists were the sisters, Hilda and Mildred Brockway, pianists, who received their musical training abroad and who have seldom been heard here. Their performance from the standpoint of technique and interpretation was excellent and they were especially enjoyed in the duet, "Italy" (Moszkowski).

The affair was a benefit for the fund to purchase glassware for the new clubhouse which the Parliamentary Law section assumed. Mrs. C. A. Brandstater is curator of the section.

COMMUNITY SING IS SET FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

The second big community "sing" to be put on by Glendale Community Service will take place at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the high school auditorium, according to R. E. Tucker, local executive. The high school orchestra will play and there will be a number of other program numbers, which are being arranged. Mrs. W. Q. Widdows will direct the community singing and A. L. Baird, chairman of the music committee of Glendale Community Service, will be chairman of the evening.

CLUB PARTY POSTPONED

Because of the constitutional oratorical contest last Friday, the party which was to have been given by the Girls' Athletic club of Glendale high was postponed until Friday, April 20th, when their mothers and sisters will be entertained with an informal good time in the girls' gym.

LOCAL BASEBALL TEAM PLAYS IN CULVER CITY

Clifford Co. Outfit Injured in Auto Accident on Way to Glendale

The Glendale team and its large crowd of supporters were surely disappointed on the home lot yesterday afternoon. Just one half hour before game time, Manager Heidler received a phone call saying the Clifford company team was unable to report for the game owing to an automobile accident in which three of the players were injured and they were unable to find substitutes, so called off the game. Manager Heidler got to work on the phone and tried to get a team to come here, but without success. Culver City then called up and said it was in the same fix as Glendale and just had to get a team. There was a very large crowd at that place waiting and a movie company wanted to shoot some "stuff" around the ball park. Unable to get Culver City to come here, the local team had to pack up and go there.

The locals sure put up a wonderful game, but lost by the close score of 6 to 5. This game was pronounced as one of the best games ever put up in that city by the fans there. "Slim" Harris started the game for the locals, but as this was the team's first game away from home, "Slim" had a dose of "stage fright" and allowed the six runs in the five innings pitched. Walt Heidler then went in and from then on no one else crossed the rubber. The team played wonderful ball, but could not push over the necessary runs to win.

Manager Heidler also wishes to announce a twilight game on Tuesday evening to be called at 5 o'clock with the Harrower Laboratory team of this city. Come out and see the two Glendale teams fight for supremacy.

Yesterday's box score:

SO. GLENDALE FOLKS ENODRSE NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

The executive committee of the South Glendale Improvement Association in the absence of a regular meeting of the association has approved and indorsed the American Legion's proposition which appears on the ballot April 10 as No. 7, and requests each and every one of our 300 members to vote "yes." By so doing, the endorsement reads: "We will assist the Legion and all other patriotic associations in their efforts to give service to the community and in a small way show our appreciation of their efforts in war and peace."

FATHER O'NEILL PREACHES LAST SERMON HERE

At all the Sunday services at the Holy Family Catholic Church the church was crowded with friends of Father James O'Neill who is leaving this week for his new appointment as head of the Oxnard Parish. When it came time to say farewell to worshippers who have been under his ministration for 20 years or more, most of whom were in tears, his voice broke and he was unable to utter the speech he had prepared. It was not needed.

The consolation which his many friends enjoy is the knowledge that he has been promoted to be the head of what is generally regarded as "the pick of the diocese" as a reward for his faithful and efficient work here. There he will be the head of a large school as well as the church, with several priests under him. The parish is out of debt, has a fine church and parish house, and is ready to welcome him.

All this is gratifying to Father O'Neil, though his heart is torn by the parting with those he loves here. But, as he said in his farewell, Oxnard is only a few hours away and he will always be delighted to see Glendalians in his new field of labor.

COMMUNITY SING PROGRAM READY FOR WEDNESDAY

The program for the community sing to be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the high school auditorium, under the auspices of Glendale Community Service, has been arranged and will include the following numbers:

Selections by high school orchestra: "Cossack Revels" (Tschakoff), "Aloha, Sunset Land" (Kawello) and "National Emblem" (Bagley), with Mrs. Dora Gibson as director.

Vocal solo, selected, by Mrs. John W. Cotton, president of the Glendale Madrigal club.

Violin duet by Marjorie Dailey and Dorothy Watson, "Norwegian Dance" (Grieg), accompanied at the piano by Doris Moyse.

Vocal solo, selected, by J. A. Myers.

Community singing, led by Mrs. W. Q. Widdows. Mrs. Gertrude Champlain Erb will preside at the piano.

W. A. HORN ISSUES FINAL STATEMENT ON ELECTION

Declares He Realizes the Rightful Place of Recreation and Amusements

Asserting that he wears "no man's collar," W. A. Horn issued a final statement today on his candidacy. It follows:

I do not want Andy Gump's result, but I do stand for some of his principles. "I wear no man's collar" fits my case exactly, fir if I am elected, it will be with no promises or pledges to anyone. I shall stand for a good, clean, government—and as directed by the vote of the citizens of our city.

I am very strongly in favor of making the city dollar buy just as much, and many times, just a little more than the dollar of the individual citizen.

I am out for good parks and playgrounds, where our community can spend its leisure hours in play and recreation. I have always been very active in baseball, tennis, volley ball, bowling, billiard, etc., as a general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and realize their rightful place in the life of the individual, to drive "dull care away" and re-create physical force in these days of strenuous living.

My slogan is PROGRESS, EFFICIENCY, ECONOMY. If my platform has merited your confidence, I shall appreciate your vote and those of your friends, Sincerly yours,

W. A. HORN.

ONE IS INJURED IN WEEK-END AUTO ACCIDENTS

Colen Dale Quackenbush, 732 South Adams street, was injured at 5:45 o'clock Saturday when he ran in front of a machine driven by I. S. Hunt of 1000 East Windsor road. The boy was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium, where his injuries were taken care of by Dr. Russell.

Automobiles driven by A. T. Young, 1107 East Colorado, and C. L. Lance, 1010½ East Elk, collided on West Colorado at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. The damage was slight and no one was injured.

Robert G. Swigert, 801 Orange street, and a person whose name could not be learned, were piloting machines that came together on Colorado street near Central avenue at 12:30 o'clock Saturday. Little damage was done.

LOCAL COMMANDERY TO ENTERTAIN AT DINNER

Tonight the Glendale Commandery will entertain the Hollywood Commandery with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock, which will be followed in the order of the temple.

Sunday, April 15, a number of the knights, accompanied by their wives, will motor to Stockton to attend the meeting of the grand council the grand chapter and the grand commandery. The entire week will be consumed in the meetings of these three bodies.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS BACK AT HIS DESK

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Harding was back at his desk today, invigorated by his five weeks' vacation in the south and ready to shoulder again the accumulation of official business.

The president is taking up the important matters before him with the intention of disposing of as many of them as possible in the next two months to clear the way for the proposed western trip. The middle of June is set as the tentative time for the beginning of the trip, but the president has not yet definitely decided whether he will carry out the proposed tour to the Pacific coast, with a possible extension to Alaska.

BUSES FOR GLENDALE ENROUTE

Ed N. Radke Makes Statement Before Glendale Credit Association

TO OPERATE HERE

Declares the International Harvester Co. Has Contracted for Equipment

According to Ed N. Radke, chairman of the committee on transportation of the Glendale Credit Association, the first consignment of several carloads of chasses and motors are on the way from the east for Glendale to be used for the new bus system, the franchise for which was secured by C. D. Gulick two weeks ago.

The International Harvester people have contracted, it is stated, to furnish everything for the buses, except the bodies, which will be built in Glendale. Mr. Radke stated that the International Harvester people jumped at the chance to connect up with the Glendale bus system and offered to furnish everything needed to provide a first-class equipment.

In his talk before the Credit Association today Mr. Radke urged the voters to turn out at tomorrow's election and vote on the important propositions on the ballot.

H. M. Butts urged the importance of a full vote on the airport proposition No. 8. He stated: "Glendale cannot afford to turn down this enterprise which means one of the biggest steps ever taken in the advancement of the city." As it takes a two-thirds' vote to carry the bonds, Mr. Butts urged every one to turn out and vote.

President Emery strongly favored proposition No. 7 which gives the American Legion a small plot of ground for a home. He said this recognition of the Legion will be a very small thing compared with what other cities have been doing.

EXECUTIVE BOARD OF BOY SCOUTS CALLED TO MEET

Considerable business is scheduled for the April meeting of the Boy Scout executive board which will be held at the district scout office this evening at 7:45 o'clock and it is desired by President A. R. Eastman to have a 100 per cent attendance.

The question of a summer vacation camp, patrol leaders' training course, troop leaders' round table banquet, scout leaders' training institute, and the quarterly banquet of the council are some of the subjects up for discussion.

GIRL ATHLETES PLAN HIKE

The Girls' Athletic club of Glendale high has planned a hike for next Saturday the 14th. The tentative itinerary will take them to the Arroyo Seco, via Flintridge.

Private Patrolman Finds Los Angeles Man With Quantity of Liquor

Harry Brum, who gives his address as Washington and Figueroa streets, Los Angeles, was arrested at 11:20 Saturday night at the corner of Stocker and Central on a charge of illegally having intoxicating liquor in his possession, according to Glendale police records.

The arrest was made by R. S. Sims, of the Glendale private patrol. After making the arrest Mr. Sims telephoned the Glendale police for assistance, Lieutenant Griffin and Officer Baugh responding. A quantity of liquor, some bottles and a jar were found, according to the police. Brum furnished $300 bail pending his appearance on Tuesday morning.

CARPENTERS' LOCAL TO MEET THIS EVENING

An opening meeting of the Carpenters' local, No. 563, will take place tonight at the K. of P. hall at Park avenue and Brand boulevard. All mechanics in Glendale are invited. Special courtesy of the floor will be extended to representatives of the Builders' Exchange of Glendale.

KENNETH GRAND SUBDIVISION IS ALL SOLD OUT

When it comes to sales records along the real estate line the Charles B. Guthrie company, 110 West Broadway, must be given the blue ribbon.

During Saturday and Sunday this firm's Kenneth-Grand subdivision, located at the corner of Grandview and Tenth, consisting of 86 lots, was entirely sold out. The total valuation of the sales was $110,000.

Throughout these two days the intersection of Tenth and Grandview was badly in need of a traffic officer. Scores upon scores of automobiles wedged their way into parking space, and their occupants literally swarmed out over the tract. It was one grand scramble to get in on the "easy pickin's" that C. B. was offering.

When the employees of the C. B. Guthrie company opened the tract office Saturday there were a number of prospective buyers there to meet them. Right there and then the sales started, and for the entire of the two days it was one continuous "sign on the dotted line" procedure.

Thirty of the lots that were sold were business sites, these comprising the only business section in that locality. The remaining 56 lots were residential. All of the lots are restricted so that nothing but first-class homes can be constructed upon them, this restriction feature referring also to the business sites.

One testimonial to the value of the property was the fact that B. Roselli and Lorenzo Clemente, from whom Mr. Guthrie purchased the property, re-purchased about $15,000 worth of the property for speculation and building purposes. A large percentage of those securing lots in this tract did so with the intention of building upon them in the very near future.

The realty firm of Hayward & McCartney co-operated with the Guthrie company in the disposal of this tract.

MISS DUKE IS WED TO GEORGE TODD

Justice of the Peace Harry Ohase officiated at the marriage on Saturday afternoon, April 7, of Agnes Duke, nurse, of 501 East Wilson avenue and George Lester Todd of 906 East Sixth street, Los Angeles. The ceremony took place at the home of Rachael Kermode, 3636 Seneca avenue, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell had the pleasure of entertaining as Sunday guests at her beautiful foothill home, Ard Eevin, her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McPeak of Berkeley, and his father and sister, Daniel McPeak, Sr., and Miss Elizabeth McPeak. The guests last named are leaving to spent a few days in San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Flanders of 4117 Sequoia street were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reid of

REV. COLE URGES THE RIGHT USE OF LORD'S DAY

Rev. Cole's topic at Central Christian church Sunday morning was "Jesus and the Sabbath." He said in part:

"Jesus was a devout Jew. He lived up to the real spirit of the Jewish law and He gave the rabbis some needed lessons on the meaning of Sabbath day observance. He, of course, observed the real Sabbath, or seventh day, as all Jews were commanded to do and as most of them do to this day. Yet from His teachings concerning the true meaning of the day, we Christians, who observe and reverence the first day of the week in honor of His resurrection, can learn some needed lessons.

"The Jews kept the outward forms yet did not discern the inner spirit of the laws. And there's a possibility that we may keep all the ordinances, yet neglect the spirit. Our God desires mercy, not sacrifice; living for others, not useless self tortures.

"'Business is business,' cries the world and crushes the other fellow—then gives some of the spoils to the church, as a sop to its conscience. 'Business is business,' cries some unworthy church member, as he robs the widow and the orphan, then gives some of the booty to missions and benevolences.

"In all the universe of God, only Heaven teaches mercy. How it pleads ofttimes for the girl who has sinned or the boy we kicked out into the street!

"Jesus said, 'It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day.' The lesson in this to us is that our good use of time is more pleasing to Him than mere abstinence from doing things prohibited. We are living under a law of service as well as abstinence.

"Again, there are many who do not honor the Lord's day at all. Their time is taken up with needless sleep, gorging and games. These rob God. They use for their own devices the six days they consider theirs, then desecrate the one day God claims of them for worship.

"Jesus was condemned of the priests and elders because He healed the man with the withered hand on the Sabbath, and He rebuked them sternly for their narrowness and inconsistency. Some people today think that there is too much church going—that if they work hard all week for their own gain, they should be free to use the Lord's day for rest and their own pleasure, if only they pay what they consider to be their proportionate church dues.

"Let us all observe the Lord's day with true, heartfelt worship and deeds of mercy."

The evening sermon was on "Voluntary and Involuntary Cross Bearing," contrasting Jesus' carrying His own cross, that man might be redeemed, with the service rendered by Simon the Cyrenian, who was compelled to take up the cross when Jesus fell fainting under its burden, and carry it to the place of crucifixion.

The special musical numbers were a duet, "Rock of Ages," by Mesdames Mercer and Smith; solo, "Leave It With Him," by Mrs. Wilbert W. Warriner; solo, "I Sought the Lord," by Mrs. C. C. Stoler; whistling solos, "The Springtime of Youth," and "Mother Macree," by Mrs. I. B. Carlock.

JETER JOLTS HIS AUDITORS WITH PREACHING

2000 Attend Services in Tabernacle, Making a Record Attendance

JERRY JETER JOLTS

"I am for every thing the devil is against and against everything he is for.

Eighty-five percent of the girls in the red light world are, by their own testimony, from the dance halls of this country.

"You never hear of a dance given where husbands dance with their own wives exclusively. It would not be long until the husband would say: 'Wife, ain't your tired? Let us go home; this is a very tame affair.'

"Neighbor, if you say that you feel no different after dancing with a real live woman, with her cheek to your cheek, her soft locks playing about your manly brow and the contour of her form within your embrace; if you say that after a few rounds you felt no different, then I say you are either 595 years old next spring or you are the biggest liar in California."

Upward of 2000 attended the big revival of Jerry Jeter yesterday and heard the evangelist in a flow of old-fashioned preaching at the big tabernacle on the corner of Cedar and Broadway. He pulled off his coat and went at his sermon last night in the old-fashioned way. He spoke from the text found in Gen. 24:25. "What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us?"

"That was the question asked by Rebekah," he said, "when she saw the man who was to become her husband.

"She had a right to ask that question," continued the evangelist. "She had a right to know all about him. The blood that flowed through his body; whether his body was clean from diseases that would blight that of her own; she had a right to know about his habits and associates and desires. We have seen pure sweet girls marry men who had diseases a thousand times worse than cholera. Uncle Sam was mighty careful about the sort of men he took into the army. Many parents seem not to care what sort of a man their pure daughters marry just so the man has plenty of money."

Mr. Jeter warned young men and girls of the dance and gave some pretty strong stuff concerning the dance of today.

"There is," he said, "a Latin inscription, on a monument well known, which says: 'It is disgraceful to dance or for a virgin to enter a ball room.' Old Cicero, who died forty-three years before Jesus Christ, said: 'No one dances unless he is either drung or crazy.' I wonder what those old Romans would think if they were to look in on one of our church and high school dances?"

Mr. Jeter was plain spoken and judging from the way the people cheered him and from the way a throng pressed forward to shake his hand the service went "over the top."

It was the largest crowd that has been seen in a revival campaign, so it is said, since the days of the John Brown meetings.

Tuesday night there will be a large delegation from Los Angeles and the business men of the city here are being invited and a large crowd is expected to hear the evangelist on: "What have you lost?"

Mrs. Jeter had a large crowd out to the Sunday afternoon service and will speak all this week at the 2:30 hour. Those who hear Mrs. Jeter say she is driving the gospel message home in a wonderful way.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, Daily Press: One hundred thousand dollars was levied on the people of Glendale last year, according to figures obtained from the city records by Asa Hall.

Our tax rate was $1.50; it should have been about $1.10, or an overtax of 40 cents per $100. Mr. Hall believes we should have this excess credited to our present year tax.

We should encourage such men as Mr. Asa Hall for public office, by giving him a big vote.

I intend to vote for Mr. Hall as one of our next councilmen and No on the bonds.

R. E. TAYLOR,
1239 South Glendale.

Voters of Glendale:

Tomorrow you are being asked to hang another millstone around your children's necks by voting bonds for an airport. The City Council was afraid to submit this proposition to the taxpayers before contracting for this land and now they are afraid to submit their actions in this matter to the courts. Do you want to uphold the council in what the court may decide was an illegal act?

If Glendale should annex to Los Angeles the council of Los Angeles could take the receipts from the airport, if any, and place the receipts in the general fund and assess the property within the present city limits of Glendale to pay off the bonds.

Do you know that you are bonding your property for $104,000 principal and interest, instead of $49,000?

Will you be willing to be led by the judgment of the city manager and the council in this matter when you hear that Asa Hall has discovered by investigating what records there are of the proceedings, that they fixed the tax rate at $1.50 when it should have been only $1.10, thus making the property owners pay almost $100,000 more than was needed to run the city. Don't you think we need a man like Asa Hall on the council?

Don't you think the bonds ought to be voted down? I do.

MISS HOWE IS WED TO SLOAN FREEMAN

Bride's Home Is Dainty Scene Saturday Evening

The wedding of Miss Thelma Howe, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Lowe of 404 West California avenue, and Sloan Chesterfield Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Freeman of Glendale, took place at 8 o'clock Saturday night, April 7, 1932. Rev. C. R. Norton officiated at the single ring ceremony.

The house was artistically decorated with a profusion of pink and white carnations and greenery. Pink and white candles further carried out the color scheme. Mrs. E. B. Moore, accompanied at the piano by Miss Erma Bradshaw, sang, "Oh, Promise Me." Miss Bradshaw also played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Mrs. William Onglis of Hollywood was the matron of honor and George Howe, brother of the bride, was the best man. Little Virginia Inglis was the flower girl and wore a frock of apple green silk with cream colored lace and carried a basket of pink rose petals. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. C. J. Lowe, who wore a gown of dove gray canton crepe with steel beads. The bride's costume was of cream silk lace over silver and orchid. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony Mrs. Moore sang "I Love You Truly." Refreshments were then served. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman are spending their honeymoon at Catalina Island. They will make their home in Van Nuys. Mr. Freeman is with the Victor Girard subdividers of Los Angeles. Both Mr. and Mrs. Freeman were former students of Glendale Union high school and have a host of friends in this city.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lowe, Miss Sheryl June Lowe, George Howe, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Freeman, Colonel and Mrs. William Inglis of Hollywood, Virginia Inglis, Walther Puffer, Vern Nyman, Mrs. Alfe Nyman, Miss Anabel Ruprecht, Mr. and Mrs. F. Riggs, Miss Maxine Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Romero, Jackie Romero, Miss Mildred Mentzer, Miss Adda Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Humbert, Miss Marjorie Humbert, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Sipple, Miss Margaret Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. Kull, Miss Virginia Ward, Mrs. Moore and Miss Bradshaw.

"KID" PARTY HELD AT THE FLANDERS' HOME

Mrs. D. H. Flanders and Mrs. Martin Sunkes were hostesses at a "kid" party given at the home of the former, 4117 Sequoia street, Saturday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Helman of Western avenue, Glendale, celebrating their third wedding anniversary. Games were played and refreshments served. Decorations of lilacs and jonquils carried out the color scheme of lavender and yellow. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. George Myer, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Helman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sunkes, Miss Williams of Los Angeles, Clarence Glaze, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Flanders.

FEDERATED P.-T. A. TO MEET WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

MEXICAN FOUND DEAD

[By Associated Press]

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—The mutilated body of a man believed to be Minguel Cortez, member of a section crew of the Santa Fe railroad, was found here today in a box car in the company's yards. A bloodstained air hose coupling, found near the box car, led the police to believe that the man was beaten and robbed. Partial identification was made by fellow workmen who said Cortez came here recently from Las Vegas, N. M.

JUVENILE AUXILIARY MEMBERS HOLD MEETING

About twenty-five children who are members of the Juvenile Auxiliary of the Glendale Music Club, met at the home of Mrs. H. V. Henry, 353 Pioneer Drive, Saturday afternoon for their regular session. An excellent program was presented, after which refreshments were served by the hostess and a good time enjoyed by the young folk. Miss Susie Smith is president of the organization and Rebecca Brant, secretary.

Mrs. Pearl Curran and her sister, Miss Hazel Linkogel, had as Sunday guests at their home on E. Chestnut, their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James Linkogel, Alfred Linkogel and Mr. and Mrs. Cook of Randsburg.

PSYCHOLOGY IN DAILY LIFE TO BE EXPLAINED

Floyd Foster Barnes to Give Free Lecture on Its Practical Application in Business

Unusual interest is being shown in the series of free lectures that will be started tonight by Floyd Foster Barnes, in the auditorium of the Glendale chamber of commerce, 150 South Brand boulevard.

Mr. Barnes is a man of unusual ability. He has chosen as his subjects, practical psychology, character analysis, vocational analysis and bio-chemistry in their relation to mind and health. On these subjects Mr. Barnes is an expert. He is one of the foremost psychologists upon the American platform today and is well known on the western coast.

These clear and inspirational lectures have been given to large audiences in many of the principal cities of the country, and thousands of people shown, through them, the way to health, prosperity and happiness, attest their marvelous value as aids and guides to better things.

Character reading at sight; the development of latent powers and how to choose the right occupation, thereby securing success—these are but a few of the valuable lessons taught.

There will be a number of character readings from the platform at each lecture. The lectures will be continued throughout the week. All of the programs will start at 8 o'clock.

"JAZZMANIA" STAR TALKS OF HER EXPERIENCE

"If you have a weakness for anything, you'll get it if you want it badly enough," says Mae Murray, star of "Jazzmania," now at the Glendale theatre, closing tonight. "That's been my motto, and to it I attribute my stage success.

"In my own case, I wanted to be a dramatic actress. I could dance well—I was in Ziegfeld's Follies for several years—but I never got an opportunity to do really emotional acting. So I capitalized my dancing ability, and it brought me to the place I wanted to reach finally. In fact, my screen debut came when I was a member of the 'Follies.'

"This sounds unusual, but it's every bit true. In that production one of the novelties was a short motion picture interlude. The audience found itself gazing at another audience on the screen. Down the aisle of this picture theatre I came and walked up to the stage. The screen was then raised, and there I was in person on the regular stage of the Ne wAmsterdam theater.

FREDERICK WARDE TO GIVE TUESDAY PROGRAM

The program to be given at the Tuesday Afternoon Club in its new club house this week will be presented by Frederick Warde, distinguished as a Shakespearean actor and more recently in the Mission Play. His theme will be "Fifty Years of Make Believe," which should be full of interest in view of his association with such stars of the stage as Henry Irving, Lawrence Barrett, Charlotte Cushman, Adelaide Neilson and Edwin Booth.

The musical portion of the afternoon's program will be furnished by our young local violinist, Miss Hazel Linkogel, who will play "Gypsy Melodies" (Sarasate) and "Serenade" (Galkine), her sister, Mrs. Pearl Curran, accompanying her at the piano.

SELF MASTERY WAS THE SUBJECT OF DR. FAREED

Dr. A. U. Fareed, speaking yesterday at the New Thought Center on the psychology of self-mastery, said in part:

"No subject is of greater interest and importance, to thoughtful men and thinking women, than that of self-mastery and its psychology. To master the forces of the natural world, may lead to the conveniences of the life of man, but to master the inner forces of man and to render the naturally unruly nature of the human subservient, leads directly to man's happiness and progress.

"Therefore the conquest of land, air and sea, in the estimation of the wise, is secondary in importance when compared to the conquest of self and the control, government and the direction of self. He who exercises rule over his spirit, is greater than he who rules the city; is one of the emphasized teachings of the Master.

"The spiritual dominion, so often spoken of by great teachers, can be gained only through this mastery. This attainment is possible by the understanding of its psychology. There are steps in the great work that must be intelligently comprehended and followed in action. To know is incomplete until it attains expression in being.

"To know, to do; to become and to be are psychological steps in the operation.

"First, you must know how good and great it is to gain mastery over self, its powers, moods and possibilities.

"Second, you must patiently do the things outlined; the class instruction given to the psychology class, carried out in every-day life will fulfill the second requirement.

"Third, you must visualize the state of the coming, or approaching nearing the goal of being, and lastly when a state of being is reached, you must conscientiously exercise and continue the great attainment to the Spiritual dominion of Being.

"'Oh, Son of Spirit: I have created thee rich, why dost thou made thyself poor? Noble have I made thee, why dost thou degrade thyself? Of the essence of knowledge, have I kneaded thee, why seekest thou other than Me. Turn thy sight into thyself, that thou mayest find Me standing within thee—Power, Might, Supreme.'"

Next Sunday Dr. Fareed's subject will be "The Mastery of King Tutankhamen and Man's Divine Mastery."

LEGION NEWS

For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of Justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.—Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

On April 10, our citizens will have an opportunity of voting on Proposition No. 7, as to whether the American Legion shall be given a two-acre piece of land formerly used for a reservoir site and which cost the city practically nothing. This two-acre tract is located at the corner of Campbell and Mountain streets.

We owe a tribute to the boys of '64, the Spanish war veterans and the boys who stopped the greatest crime and disgrace which civilization records since the beginning of the world. During the great conflict we gave freely and rejoiced in giving; and we have not forgotten and never will forget what these boys did.

Vote for Proposition No. 7 and it will carry, and the American Legion will build a club house here which will be a credit to Glendale and to the boys who were and are a credit to the world.

SPENCER ROBINSON,
Mayor.

TRYOUTS IN CLASS ORATORS THIS WEEK

The preliminary try outs to select class representatives for the inter-class oratorical, the big event of the year in Glendale high, will be held this week. Freshmen and sophomores will have a hearing today, seniors and juniors on Tuesday. The oratorical has been set for April 20, and will probably be held in the Glendale theatre at 10 a. m. of that day, William Hoyt, manager, having kindly donated its use for the purpose. So great is the desire to participate in this annual event that it will be quiet out of the question to give it in the school auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kerr, pioneers of the Atwater tract here, sold their home on Atwater avenue and will move into a furnished apartment in Los Angeles while building their four-family flat, to be located on Columbia, in walking distance from the business district. Mrs. Kerr says that their ten years in Atwater have proven it is an ideal location in which to live.

Mrs. Heasley and granddaughter, Maxine Heasley, have been the guests of Mrs. Pierce on West Elk.

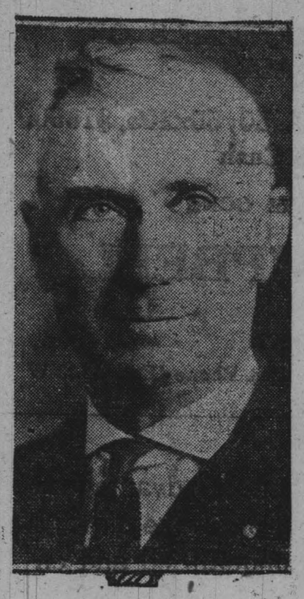
OUR CHOICE for Councilmen and WHY--



W. A. HORN

A citizen but not a politician.

Seventeen years a resident of California.

10 years a successful manufacturer and over 20 years a financial executive.

A keen student of municipal development and the problems attached to rapidly growing communities.

ASA HALL

34 years a resident of California.

12 years a taxpayer of Glendale.

A founder of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange (the salvation of the orange and lemon industry).

Head bookkeeper and accountant in the Los Angeles auditor's office for 14 years, from 1907 to 1921 (entailing the preparing of tax ordinances and making tax levies, apportioning all city money).

A student of municipal administration.

Platform

PROGRESS, EFFICIENCY and ECONOMY for the Building of a Greater Glendale

1. The immediate solution of the sewer question.

2. A thorough investigation of the tax rate.

3. Every city dollar to have a hundred per cent purchasing power.

4. A thorough investigation of the possibility of a lowering of the present tax rate.

5. Parks, playgrounds and other property purchased only by vote of the people.

6 Transportation to all sections of Glendale. Lower fares to Los Angeles.

7. Fair representation given all sections of the city.

8. Liberal policy towards recreation.

Endorsement—

Glendale needs Efficiency in city management! Efficiency is the outgrowth of Experience.

Glendale needs Economy in city management! Economy is resultant from a heart interest in the growth of a community!

We point with pride to the above record of past endeavors which insure further success.

Glendale's beauty attracts. Her fine climate makes secure.

Her tax rate must not be prohibitive!

Sanitation must be maintained at a high standard.

These problems facing Glendale today are keenly realized.

They must be felt to be remedied.

Both of the above men are alive to the vital necessity of clear thinking. Both are men of action and integrity.

We heartily endorse their candidacy for city councilmen and ask for the support of all conscientious Glendale voters.

That which has created, held intact and increased sound estates for others will do the same for you.

Here we offer that class of real estate which always has returned several hundred per cent profit to those who acquire it at first cost.

This particular location, with its beautiful and unobstructed view, splendid natural surface and air drainage, exceptionally high quality of civic improvements, its wise and stringent restrictions, makes it Class A residential property which will rise rapidly in value. $1,000,000 will be spent for all modern improvements in this Rossmoyne Tract.

We have studied this remarkable property thoroughly, and offer you our years of experience in selecting the best values therein.

Here is the best value we ever saw offered in a subdivision.

BEAUTIFUL

BELLEHURST PARK

IN THE HEART OF GLENDALE

NOW SELLING
LIKE WILD-FIRE!

This magnificent old estate—an enchanted garden in the midst of the fastest forward marching city in America.

Come today—at once—and see with your own eyes these wonderful home-sites covered with fine old palms, magnolias, oaks, and hundreds of bearing orange, Lemon and olive trees.

We are creating here in Glendale a unique residence park for Southern California—one that will rival and excel in beauty the thousand acres of distinctive home communities we have developed in Piedmont and Oakland in the San Francisco Bay region.

Bellehurst Park is dedicated to fine homes. Restrictions are carefully worked out to insure steadily increasing values. All city improvements of the highest type are now being installed at our expense. Pacific Electric trains only 2 blocks away. Four schools within 5 blocks. Very easy terms to first buyers.

CAN PHILOSOPHY AND MORAL LAW SAVE A MAN?

Can man be saved through philosophy and moral law? This was the question asked by Rev. Henry O. Kringel of the Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran church Sunday morning in the introduction of his sermon, based on 2 Timothy, 3: 15-17. The theme was, "The Purpose of the Holy Scriptures."

"No indeed," said the speaker, "man must cling to and believe the Gospel message, that Jesus died for him on the Cross, and washed away his sins with His precious blood. We see, therefore, that to a poor sinner, who wants to be saved, the Gospel has retained the same value that it had when Christ preached it Himself upon earth. We can readily deduce therefrom that the old, old Gospel has withstood the onslaught of the ages. It is the only true way unto salvation that man knows of. The Gospel is not changeable like the things thought of and created by man. The Gospel is the rock that lasts forever, that challenges the billows of time and the earthquakes of the ages.

"This is the Gospel of the Bible. We quote from St. Paul as he states in the Holy Scriptures, 2 Tim. 3: 15-17: 'And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.'

"This passage contains St. Paul's classic eulogy on the Holy Scriptures. It consists mainly of three parts: the origin, the properties and the purpose of the Scriptures. Today we shall consider the purpose of the Holy Scriptures.

"The purpose of the Bible is to make man wise, to teach wisdom, the highest attainable wisdom. There is a countless number of books in this world, all having one purpose in view: to make man wise—wise in history, in science and in art. The Holy Scripture, however, is a book in a class all by itself. It teaches wisdom which reason could not attempt to teach, because it knows nothing thereof; it teaches wisdom unto salvation.

"Supposed you possessed all the knowledge in this world, it would last but for a season; you must die. 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' Here is a problem in profit and loss: gain the world, lose the soul. What is the profit? How high, therefore, is the purpose of this God-given book—to make wise unto salvation, to gain the soul! And what does it teach as the wisdom unto salvation? 'Faith in Christ Jesus.'

"Natural man, left to his own imagination, thinks he can appease God by observing this, that, or the other thing; by offering sacrifices, by works of his own devising. The only way to attain salavation is 'by faith in Christ Jesus.'

"And now as you read your Bible, you will find this to be true from the first Gospel promise in Genesis 3, to the last page in Revelation. Everywhere in the Old as well as in the New Testament, the central theme is, salvation by faith in Christ Jesus. Job, in view of death, exultingly exclaims, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth!' Old Simeon, with the Christ child in his arms, says, 'Now lettest Thou thy servant depart in peace; for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation.' The keeper of the prison, anxiously inquiring, 'What must I do to be saved?' is told, 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved.' And St. John asserts that the entire Gospel was written but for this one purpose, 'that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that, believing, ye may have life in His name.'"

MISS ELOENE TRUITT IS HOSTESS TO MISS FERRY

Miss Eloene Truitt was hostess Saturday at a smartly appointed luncheon in which a pink and white motif was carried out, in honor of her friend, Miss Mary Alice Ferry, who is leaving for the Ramona Convent School.

Covers were laid for twelve, the list including Frances Wyman, Lois Olmsted, Marcella Webb, Jane Fritch, Mildred Thompson, Verna Anderson, Velma Bolton, Beulah Dunbar, Dorothy Watson, Tamson Johnson, the hostess and the honoree.

Bridge followed the luncheon at which Tamson Johnson made high score, the second prize going to Frances Wyman and the consolidation favor to Velma Bolton.

"SEARCH FOR GOD" IS TOPIC OF REV. EDMONDS

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, following the installation of recently elected deacons, preached a sermon dedicated to the board of deacons. His subject was "The Search for God," from the words, "O that I knew where I might find Him!"

These words come out of the deep inner experience of Job in bereavement, and they have been the painful cry of ages. But we know God is nearer than hands or feet or breathing. As we face the new year, let the past be past, we press forward to the mark—not only to see God but to know Him!

Sometimes there seems a dimness about Him—Him that we need most. "Here in nature you will find Him;" the heavens declare the glory of God; but when I need Him that is so far. It is not enough to feel the God of nature. Nature has no mercy; the child wants the father. I want my Father's gifts, but first I want Him; then I have His gifts too. No, nature will not do, nature has no mercy.

But we are not left in the dark. We come here to the Word and we have the photograph of Him as in a mirror. I look here to find Him with His help and His saving, "God is love." We find here what we cannot find in nature.

And we find God in His providences. "Why does He deal thus with me?" He deals with His children only in mercy. If you are on trial, remember we can trust in Him, and never be afraid. Nothing is too great for Him to undertake, nothing too little for Him to care about.

But there are things we must remember: we have to pay a price to find God. The place to find Him is in His house. We ought to make everything of the church which He has purchased with His blood. Make much of the service of the Lord's day, and of the prayer meeting. You friendly people that are stopped at home with company, how about your Lord, or will you find Him out on a joyride?

If you are to find Him in His reality you must have the open face, "with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of God." So many have their vision blurred with the things that are a little questionable. Lot never had vision down there in the plain of Sodom. Telescopes are put on the mountain where the seeing is good. And we need the open ear. God wants to speak to us, and we have ears for everything else. And the open heart. Jesus knocking—let Him in! "Behold I stand at the door and knock." And an open will, an obedient and responsive will. "Give me a will like Thine!"

"GLIMPSES OF THE MOON" TUESDAY AT THE T. D. & L.

Allan Dwan, famous as the producer of "Robin Hood," has done remarkable work in his first Paramount picture, "The Glimpses of the Moon," adapted from Edith Wharton's novel, which will be the feature at the T. D. and L. theater, Tuesday. With Bebe Daniels, Nita Naldi, Rubye de Remer, David Powell, Maurice Costella and Charles Gerrard in the cast and an exceedingly costly investiture, this picture is one of the most effective and elaborate screen society dramas thus far presented to the public.

The hitherto paradoxical figure of speech "clothed in nudity," actually is made real by Nazimova in her newest photoplay, a film version of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," which is now at the T. D. and L. theater. In the famed Dance of the Seven Veils this great Russian star has contrived to portray the daughter of Herodias as she slips out of the last and seventh veil without giving any basis for censorship.

From an apprentice blacksmith down to an erratic automobile mechanic, Buster Keaton, solemn-visaged comedian of the silver screen, tumbles his way through two reels of fun in "The Blacksmith," his latest comedy, a First National Attraction, now at the T. D. and L. theatre.

Visiting San Diego and registering at the St. James from Glendale are Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Pingree.

LA CRESCENTA NEWS AND NOTES

Most enjoyable was the balloon dance given by the La Crescenta Woman's club last Saturday evening with a record attendance. The special dance features by the talented Miss Frances Morgan of Tujunga, and the little Misses Helen Mead and Mary Ann Howard of Montrose, Elizabeth Martin and Betty Austen, added much to the evening's pleasure. Many of the club members entertained guests for the dance and week-end from Los Angeles, Glendale and Pasadena. Fletcher's orchestra of Pasadena furnished the music.

The La Crescenta Aolian Music club had their regular meeting at the home of the president, Robert A. Kelson of Los Angeles and Mayfield avenues, last Friday evening. After the business meeting an interesting program was rendered by club members. One of the interesting features of the evening was an informal discussion of current events of the musical world. Those who participated in the program were Misses Henrietta Biescar, Marian Keith, Elizabeth Morrison, Marguerite Hauner and Mr. Kelso. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Morrison, Friday evening, April 13.

Members of the Missionary society of the Community church were entertained by Mrs. R. Stine, last Friday afternoon at her home on West Mayfield avenue. Mrs. W. McClellin, vice president of the society, presided over the business session. Mrs. Charles Bowden of Camden, N. J., was an out of town guest. Mrs. Stine was assisted by Mrs. A. Burt.

The local Boy Scouts were delightfully entertained at a weiner bake at the Robison home on West Honolulu avenue last Wednesday evening. Interesting stories told around the camp fire by Ben Robison, scout master of Glendale troop No. 2, was one of the happy features of the evening. A hike up Cook's canyon by the La Crescenta Scouts yesterday afternoon was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Wallace M. Morgan and daughter, Miss Frances Morgan and Carol W. Parcher of Tujunga, attended the La Crescenta Woman's club dance Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Dennis of East Altura avenue were hosts to a party of friends from Hollywood for the La Crescenta Woman's club dance and over Sunday.

Mrs. W. A. LeClair of Los Angeles, her daughter, Miss Heloise Le Clair and a group of Marlbrough classmates, attended the La Crescenta Woman's club dance Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ortmeyer of Los Angeles were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Singleton of Honolulu avenue for the week-end.

GILLETT TENT TO MEET TUESDAY EVENING

The regular meeting of Mary Jane Gillett Tent, Daughters of Veterans, will be held tomorrow night at the American Legion hall. There will be initiation of new members and election of delegates to the annual department convention, which is to take place in May at Modesto.

NEWS OF EAGLE ROCK CITY

P.-T.A. PLANS DRIVE FOR CAFETERIA FUNDS

Five Hundred Dollars Is Total Amount to Be Raised

The plan for a big May festival, in which all the pupils of the Central school were to take part, has been abandoned by the Parent-Teachers' association of that school, in favor of an extensive campaign for funds to be utilized in the upkeep, and in payment of the debts of the Central school cafeteria.

The orginal plan was to hold the festival on the school grounds, the Saturday before May day. But such an affair, while being a big undertaking and commanding much of the time of both students and parents, as well as teachers who would be called upon to drill the dances and games, would net a very small financial return. And since the proposed consolidation of Eagle Rock and Los Angeles has become a certainty, the parent-teacher organization members felt that all past debts for equipment and supplies should be wiped off the slate as soon as possible.

Next year the association will be handicapped by several changes which will come with consolidation. Only two pay entertainments will be allowed during the year. This, of course, does not include the regular parent-teacher picture show which takes place once a week. That is handled through other rules, because the organization itself does not benefit directly. The Parent-Teacher association purchased the machine, and the pay showings of feature pictures are providing the funds with which the machine is being paid for. When paid up, the machine will be turned over to the school. So, under the new city-state law conditions, there will be little opportunity for the association to raise money through the usual benefit entertainments.

Five hundred dollars is the amount which the Parent-Teacher association wishes to raise. This will not only pay up for all the new equipment, but will also provide enough to float the cafeteria for awhile next year. Mrs. Lerchin is chairman of the cafeteria fund committee, and aided by the mothers of school students, she plans to carry on a canvass of Eagle Rock for the money needed. Any contribution, from 25 cents up, will be gratefully received by those in charge. It is hoped that several prominent individuals interested in the value of the cafeteria to the children, will come forward with substantial contributions.

VACATION CLOSES WITH ABSENTEES

Now that the students of Central School are again returning to their classes, after so many absences due to the festivities of Easter, several teachers are also on the absent list. Every day some more are among the missing, this morning three failing to appear. Upon such short notice Superintendent Harwood was unable to find any substitutes at once, so several classes were without discipline. Superintendent Harwood states that all the teachers will return as soon as the attack of the flu and other slight afflictions are overcome, but Miss Langdon, who for some time has been in charge of music work at the school, has resigned. Miss Langdon, due to the condition of her health has found the indoor work too confining, and has signified her intention to take a rest for awhile.

BUILDING PERMIT TOTALS

Permits for over $10,000 worth of building were issued Saturday. These permits were granted to Wm. E. Standeven, 4700 York boulevard, for a 4-room bungalow; Julius Berg, of Los Angeles, for Miss Phoebe Kilpatrick, also of Los Angeles, to build a six room residence which will be erected at 152 Grand View avenue; E. P. Ransom, of Glendale, for a 5-room dwelling at 117 Hartwick street, and to George Spencer, 1014 West Eagle Rock avenue, and Milton Deacon, 836 East Park avenue, permits for garages.

JUDGE CRUZAN IS VERY BUSY MAN

Owing to the fact that Judge Cruzan found his law practice in Los Angeles so heavy this week, and had several cases scheduled for this morning, it was found necessary to postpone the regular session of the local court until next Saturday. The business which was slated to come before the judge this morning will be carried over and the plaintiffs and defendants will all be notified to appear next week.

KEEP WELL AFTER YOU GET WELL. Dr. A. H. Merrill, Chiropractor, will tell you the secret. Give him a fair trial. Call afternoons at 118 S. Satsuma, Eagle Rock. Phone Garvanza 163.—Adv.

OLD PAPER DRIVE IS STARTED BY P. T. A. FOLKS

To Defray the Cost of Publishing School Annual

Following the suit of the chamber of commerce with its membership drive, the P.-T. A. with the cafeteria fund drive; the city hall, with a business license drive, and also the dog-tax drive; the Central School is instituting an old paper drive. This year the school students wish to publish an annual, filled with stories, pictures and incidents of the school life of this year, all written and drawn by the students themselves. The undertaking is somewhat costly, although the publication will be on a much smaller scale than that of high schools.

So the students have decided to corner the market on old newspapers, wrapping paper, paper sacks—any kind of paper. This will be wrapped in bundles and sold to dealers by the pound. It will take a lot of paper to raise enough for the annual but the students are all hopeful that townspeople will co-operate with them in the project. Anyone who wishes to rid his storeroom of old newspapers may do so by phoning his name and address to the school.

ALL DOGS MUST BEAR LICENSE NOW

Eagle Rock dogs will no longer be allowed to roam the streets without their little brass tags of identification. Hereafter every stray canine "bum" will be taken into custody by city officials, held in the local pound for a week or two, during which time a description may be published for the perusal of those who find their four-footed "pals" missing, and then, if no friends call to "bail them out" will be executed.

QUARTERLY BANQUET TO BE HELD TUESDAY

The quarterly banquet of the Retired Ministers' Association will take place in the Methodist Church annex next Tuesday noon. The ladies of the Methodist church will serve. One hundred covers will be laid, and the general public is invited to attend. The price is 50c per plate, and all those who desire to make advance reservations should see Mrs. Morrow as soon as possible.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN TO MEET ON APRIL 10

The "work department" of the Presbyterian Ladies' Guild will meet at the home of Mrs. Post, 321 Ridgeway, on April 10, from 1 to 5 o'clock, to sew for needy children of the city. Mothers who wish to bring their small children to the "sewing bee" are cordially invited to do so, Mrs. Boals, chairman, announces.

CITY PRINTING

NOTICE OF AWARD OF CONTRACT

Pursuant to statute and to Resolution of Award of the Council of the City of Glendale, California, adopted the 5th day of April, 1923, directing this notice, notice is hereby given that the said Council, in open session, on the 2nd day of April, 1923, opened, examined and publicly declared all sealed proposals offered for the following improvement, to-wit:

The improvement of portions of Gilbert Street and Pacific Avenue and portions of certain streets and alleys intersecting and terminating therewith in the City of Glendale as described in Resolution of Intention No. 1810, passed by said Council on the 8th day of February, 1923, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work, and of the district to be assessed therefor.

The Council of the City of Glendale determines that serial bonds shall be issued to represent assessments of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year at the rate of seven per cent per annum on all sums unpaid until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

Said bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to provide a system of street improvement bonds to represent certain assessments for the cost of street work and improvements within municipalities and also for the payment of such bonds," approved February 27, 1893, and of all Acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof.

And thereafter, to-wit: On the 5th day of April, 1923, awarded the contract for said work to the lowest regular responsible bidder, to-wit: W. J. Curren, at the prices specified for said improvement in his proposal, on file for said improvement, to-wit:

Grading, per linear foot	$ .50
Oiling and macadamizing, 3-in. per square foot	.09
Curb, "Class B," per linear foot	.50
Sidewalk, per square foot	.16
Cast Iron Pipe, complete	1615.23

And that said award has been approved by the Mayor of the said City of Glendale.

Clerk's office, City of Glendale, California, 9th day of April, 1923.

A. J. VAN WIE,
City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

SINCE THE RAIN

By MRS. J. B. BROWN

How beautiful the world is
Since the rain,
How fresh, and clean the
Green things are;
How more than sweet
The odors are,
That come from blooms
Anear and far,
From mountain, hill and plain.

How wonderful the world is
Since the rain;
How every bit that grows is seen
To quickly show a darker green,
And mankind wears a happier mien
His spirits rise again.
For O, the earth was sad and brown
Without the rain.
The lovely fields a-dying lay;
The wheat, the corn, the grass, the hay
Would come to naught, alas the day
Should God not send the rain.

Rejoicing now we thank Him
For the rain;
His blessings are for everyone;
Has been so since 'twas first begun.
The day, the night, the rain, the sun;
For all good, praise His name.

SUB'S CREW COMMENDED

[By Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The navy department has officially commended five members of the crew of the submarine S-11 "for exceptionally meritorious conduct," in conection with efforts to bring medical aid to sick seamen, marooned in a boat in Provincetown, Mass., harbor last February 15.

PROCLAMATION

WANTED by Frank Booth, Candidate for your City Councilman. He would like all owners of automobiles in Glendale, who are in accord with his platform at the coming election tomorrow (Tuesday) to donate their autos to friends in their neighborhood, and take them to the polls to vote for yours truly, Frank Booth. I promise not to litter or paste up your auto with posters; just do it in a quiet way, so as to show at the conclusion that Right is Might, and what a fair, right-minded, just people you are, and let us win out in the most wonderful fight against the tremendous odds that we are up against. There is a principle involved; it's not the paltry pay of $10 a meeting F. Booth is after; he would rather no pay was attached to the job—only that he may serve the people with fairness—a servant of the people.

I thank you.

FRANK BOOTH,
111 S. Kenwood St., Glendale.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF BURBANK

BURBANK ROTARIANS WILL RECEIVE CHARTER TONIGHT AT SUNSET COUNTRY CLUB

Banquet and Entertainment Will Be Enjoyed by More Than One Hundred Guests This Evening

Rotarian wives were busy today preparing all sorts of fancies in blue and gold to lend a festive air to the gala night banquet this evening at the Sunset Canyon Country club for the Burbank Rotarians are to celebrate "charter" night.

More than two hundred will be in attendance tonight when the local club receives its charter presented by the District Governor Jack Williams of Long Beach. The entire afafir will be one to be remembered for some time. The banquet, the program and the social time are being looked forward to by all who have been invited to attend.

Speakers at the conference at Pasadena were secured to give after dinner talks. Mrs. Valentine, accompanied by Mrs. Walter Fisher at the piano, will be the soloist for the evening.

Mrs. Andrew Fillbach, Mrs. Swall and Mrs. Cummings have been diligent all day making ready for tonight. Blue and gold Rotary colors will be repeated in all the appointments and favors. A. C. Fillbach, Ray Sence and Mr. Cummings are the Rotarians in charge of the entertainment.

PUPILS DO WELL IN MUSIC STUDY

Children Find the Music Memory Contest Attractive

The second week of the Music Memory contest has started out in a spirited manner. Miss Brown and Mrs. Schultz are continuing to give a few minutes' talk every day on the selections, for the two roms in a joint session. The children are finding the music and the talks a decidedly interesting way to acquire knowledge.

Musicians in the town have been very generous in giving time to the affair. The next evening recital which will be free to the public will be given by pupils of Mrs. Zefer Sparrow at the Edison building on Friday evening, April 20.

Those appearing on the program at that time will be Barbara Moore, Olivia Fainot, Elizabeth Brown, Rhoda Moore, Temple Matthews, Russell Reed, Genette Blanchard, Nora Greenman, Helen Olson, Esaole Moore, Marguerite Schiss, Francis Riley, Dorothy Sproule and Margaret Woods.

Mrs. Walter Fisher has arranged for the next program which will be a matinee musical immediately after school. While it is for the contestants especially, all the friends and relatives and all interested in music are cordially invited.

Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Valentine will give a duet arrangement of "Tales of Hoffman." Mrs. Valentine will sing 'My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice;" Mrs. J. Courtland Scott will sing 'By the Waters of Minnetonka;" Kristine Krum will play "To a Wild Rose," "Minute in G," and "Traumerei." These are some of the numbers on the delightful program planned.

Homer Davis thinks the prospects for a band concert are not very good but an orchestra of Burbank players may be arranged for the date which was reserved for the band. Following that will be a recital by the advanced pupils of Mrs. Sparrow. The final concert will be given by the Burbank Music Shop and Mrs. Sparrow.

The awards of the prizes will be made the last Friday in May. Those contributing these prizes are De Moss & Hollomon, Burbank Music Shop, W. J. Riley, R. O. Church, Morris Spazier, Goodrich Investment company. Castle Furniture company, E. J. Jackson, L. B. Evans, B. W. Loper, V. P. Ervin, R. J Rosenburg, Sinclair Printing company

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST SCRAPBOOK CLIPPINGS

No. 13 Largo—Handel

George Frederick Handel was born in Germany in 1685, the same year as the great Bach was born. Handel could play the clarichord and organ quite well when he was only eight years old. At nineteen he was a famous organist. Quite early he came to London, and here he did oratorios in public for the first time. Till now they had always been done in a church, but during Lent, when the theaters were closed, Handel was so sorry the people should have no music all these weeks that he took a hall and gave sacred concerts in it. Handel wrote twenty-two oratorios altogether. He was so strong he could go all day, never tiring, no matter how much he had to do.

"The Messiah," one of his greatest oratorios, was written in a fortnight, in the middle of conducting, playing and visiting his friends. When he was director of opera in London he was such a fashionable person that society folks used to buy boxes and fans with his picture on them, copy the clothes he wore, and even write verses on his doings. He was known as "the magnificent bachelor." Handel never married, and seems never even to have been in love, though he was an unusually pious son and a fond brother. When blindness came upon him he bore it with great courage. He died April 14, 1759, appreciated by England as no composer had ever been before.

"Largo in G." The term "largo" means large, broad, or in other words—massive and very slow. This composition is distinctly religious in character. It suggests the vast dim aisles, the stately pillars, the lofty vaulted dome of some solmen cathedral.

"Wedding March"—Mendelssohn

This is the third composition by Mendelssohn. But we could hardly compile a list of well-known musical compositions for a music memory contest without including this familiar selection. Since its creation, it has been the one composition used at all weddings where music had any part in the ceremony. It was written to accompany the march of the noble wedding party in Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream;" hence it has the atmosphere of pride and splendor as well as gaiety.

"Archibald, dear," said the young mother," you must not go near the baby."

"Why," returned the young father, "may I not look at him just for a minute?"

"No, dear," answered the young mother, "he's asleep at present. I'll let you take him when he wakes up in the night."

Every failure may be a step nearer to success.

WRITES BOOSTER BURBANK SONG

R. W. Colburn, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was presented with a booster song for Burbank, written by Mrs. May M. Clarke. The song very nearly qualifies for the alphabet contest for it has every letter in the alphabet in it with the exception of j g x and y, somewhere. Furthermore, she has used nearly every letter of the alphabet at the beginning of a word. The verses and chorus follow:

"They told us of a brand new plan,
they sang another song;
They sang it with a vim that helped them along—
Sang it till they have a pile 5000 strong,
While they were working for Burbank!

CHORUS

"Hurrah, hurrah! for the ones that put it through;
Hurrah, hurrah! help them make the old town new;
For Colburn's here, Ted is too, no one is feeling blue,
While we are boosting for Burbank!

"Bring on the man who says old Burbank is dead,
We'll show him by our action and clear it from his head,
We're building up the old town, we'll paint it bright and red
While we are boosting for Burbank!

"Church is here and Spazier, too, the flowers of the flock—
And if you don't believe me, just walk around the block;
The doubting ones are all in line, no one has time to knock
While we are working for Burbank!

"And now, dear friends, we've told you all the facts—
We want you all to get in line;
If you'll step up smiling, this is no dog gone tax—
We'll all soon own a Moreland truck and ride up with the band
If we keep boosting for Burbank!

NEED NO TONIC FOR BUILDING PERMITS

Burbank building permits for the first week in April nearly reached the $50,000 mark, the total being $47,077. Permits were issued by Elmer Dale on the last day of the week to John Bateman, Doris court, $100; E. L. White, garage and dwelling $3000; E. L. White, garage and dwelling $4000; Dr. McGuire, dwelling $7500; total $47,077.

WOMEN WEAR MORE ARTIFICIAL SILK

Of the 26,000,000 pounds of artificial silk bought last year by women, 50 per cent went into hosiery and underwear, 30 per cent into knitted cloth and outerwear, and 20 per cent into miscellaneous fabrics, said Miss Edna Irene Avery of Tacoma in a radio broadcaster talk, via K F A E, State College of Washington, lately. The estimate for 1923 is one-fourth higher, or 34,000,000 pounds, she says. As women will be wearing more artificial silk than ever before, she believes they should know one or two things about it.

After describing the early history of the silk industry, from the original monopoly of the silk worms and manufacture by China 4200 years ago, and the secreting of eggs of the worms in the hollow staves of missionary monks from Constantinople 2800 years later, initiating European manufacture under Justinian, she traced the development of silk weaving.

In the nineteenth century a Frenchman discovered a chemical process of treatment of spruce bark to make a thick syrup which, forced through tiny holes and hardened became a remarkable thread that glistened like silver. Woven into cloth, it was more lustrous than silk from the worm, but not so strong.

"By 1900 the ladies with their pocketbooks enter the story," said Miss Avery. "They bought this material in their embroidery flosses, in dress trimmings, in stockings—which they thought were silk, in their husbands' neckties, in fringe and window drapes, in those cotton and wool dress materials having a stripe or pattern of gay colored silk, in sweaters and underwear, and in millinery.

"It is very beautiful, and worthy of being worn. But at present it is not very strong unless tightly woven in cloth. Wherever long strands are exposed they are very apt to catch, fray and break, and such material as crepe knit, for instance, does not give satisfactory wear if service is desired.

"In the early days of its manufacture it was like the small boy—fought shy of water and disappeared when it had to stand washing. Its habits have improved, however, and today most of the artificial silk can be washed if care is taken not to use too hot water.

"To tell the difference between artificial and true silk put a piece in the flame of a match. Artificial silk will burn with a flash, while true silk leaves a reminder of its presence in black ash and a strong odor. If no flame is handy, its extreme lustre will give the artificial silk away."

WILL NEW SECTION OF WOMAN'S CLUB SPONSOR THE FOUNDING OF A NEW CITY LIBRARY?

"A town the size of Burbank should have a city library," said Attorney Margaret Yale at the meeting of the new section of the Woman's club, Saturday afternoon. "Burbank claims to have eight thousand and a town of eight thousand should surely have a library of its own."

The women of this section who meet to study "Current Events" and "Active Citizenship," are contributing books to the city of Burbank, and this will be a nucleus for the town library. The books are material for their study and are to be kept in the library in the city hall which is a branch of the county library.

Although the new section is "just a very small infant," as the chairman, Mrs. Yale said, yet each member is so enthusiastic and so energetic that judging from the first program meeting held Saturday, this group will do many things for the town, and no doubt one of the first things will be to establish a town library.

It is the plan of the section to let each one present contribute ten cents if they wish to, toward a fund for literature to be used in connection with the study and to be given to Burbank. Every woman in the city is invited to attend the program meetings.

"The City We Live In," was the theme of the most interesting meeting Saturday afternoon of the section. The session opened with a few minutes devoted to Current Events, when each one present commented on some fact in the day's news.

Miss Florence Allen, Conan Doyle, sleeping sickness effects, the labeling of drygoods and wearing apparel with its true value, the music convention at Santa Ana, the making of too many laws, were some of the topics mentioned.

Mrs. Cora Clark gave an instructive and entertaining outline on the government of Burbank. Beginning with the election of the five city trustees she told of the various officials and their duties.

"The Citizen's Part in Government," was the subject of a paper by Mrs. H. R. Coburn. Mrs. Coburn had very decided views on the matter and clearly and definitely stated them, beginning with the idea of patriotism and loyalty as the first essential. Thoroughness in doing any duty is an essential, she declared. Co-operation in everything for the good of the town is another item.

Serving on the jury should not be evaded. A citizen should vote at every election; women should shoulder civic responsibility. Give your support to needed legislation. These were the essentials that Mrs. Coburn advocated for Burbank citizens.

"Efficiency in City Government," was the next topic upon the program. Mrs. Charles Wilson spoke briefly and suggested a short discussion which followed. A free and open discussion of affairs with the public demanding the truth will keep efficiency in city government, according to the ideas contributed.

Mrs. Irving Sherlock told of replanning small cities. Citing Boston and Pittsburgh for examples, she told how a large city remedied the mistakes made when much smaller. She described several of the plans of large cities, such as the Washington, D. C., checkerboard plan. Zoning of towns for permanency is a practical plan in some cases and can be done. Convenience, health and beauty must be considered in planning a city, said Mrs. Sherlock.

The entire afternoon was very helpful to the women interested in citizenship and the next meeting will be looked forward to with great pleasure.

Mrs. Harding made a report on the library books. A table will be provided in the library for all the books on citizenship and for material on current events. These books will be contributed by the various members of the division for the city of Burbank and will be the nucleus for a city library.

COLBURN AND KNABENSHUE MAKE ARRANGEMENTS TO MANUFACTURE RADIO BALLOONS

Will Start a Factory in Burbank in Near Future to Put Out Bags Carrying One Strand Antenna Wire at Any Height

Under the firm name of Colburn-Knabenshue Manucturing Co., aeronautical contractors, R. W. Colburn and A. R. Kanbenshue, with Mr. Knabenshue having the active management for the present, are planning to start balloon factory in Burbank.

The radio balloon was invented by Mr. Colburn and Knabenshue designed it. It is to be a part of a radio set equipment, forming the aerial which will carry one strand wire to any height. It will please children who have always found balloons interesting and it will do away with the poles, declares Mr. Colburn.

The balloon will be what is known as the kite type and will conform to that type in every way except size. This type was adopted because of the fact that a perpendicular line is required in order to obtain highest possible elevation and to be insure1 against the balloon being forced down by wind.

The list will be representative of all sizes from the small junior capable of lifting 300 feet of wire, to the commercial with sufficient lifting power to carry 1000 feet or more. All sizes will be made of silk so treated to insure resistancy to atmospheric action.

This week there will be a demonstration envelope which is thirteen feet long and will carry an antennae wire 1000 feet long.

Not only will radio balloons be manufactured but everything in the line of aeronautical supplies will be made. Requests for information received to date, indicate that the radio balloon is to be the most popular idea thus far brought out in the radio world.

When economy and an increased service are combined in any new product, the story is soon told as to its ultimate success. Patent papers have been filed at Washington and the story has been released to all publications.

Truths in Epigram

For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. — New Testament.

Life is a fatal complaint, and an eminently contagious one.—Holmes.

Life is too short for mean anxieties. — Kingsley.

SPURIOUS DOCTRINES

The right of every individual to his religious belief is unquestioned in this country. There is instant protest at the least sign of interference. The independence of thought thus indicated rests securely on the constitution, and is upheld by the instinctive human appreciation of justice. In many instances unprincipled or ignorant, or mentally incompetent persons, have taken advantage of these circumstances to pose as leaders of a deluded group. In such cases the poseur is likely to assume the status of divinity. Thus accepted by followers, he is able to pursue whatever depraved course may be suggested by his greed or evil passions. It is not infrequent for the followers to be robbed of their property, made to sacrifice their families, to relinquish liberty of thought or action, and become sunk in mental and physical serfdom. The unwholesome truth has been exposed many times. To suppress the leaders, or to convince the victims that they have been swindled, wronged and mocked, is difficult. The same dupes are ready to gather about the same leader in a new place, or to join the cause of some equally degenerate schemer.

In Michigan there is in progress an effort to suppress one cult that appears to exhibit the usual symptoms of grossness. If charges are true the operators really are on the moral plane of bunko experts, and merit no consideration. The foolish flocks are entitled to protection, exactly as the greenhorn is cautioned by the police from investing in a gold brick proffered by a stranger. A doctrine that in practice leads to actual crime, so clearly is spurious as to demand the attention of the civil authorities.

POLITICAL PRISONERS

Two years ago, the newspaper La Presna of Lima, Peru, was one of the six leading journals of South America. It was opposed to President Leguia, who caused its seizure in the name of the government. The editor, Senor Durand, fled for his life. Lately he ventured back into the country, was arrested and taken aboard the cruiser Grau. He died on the vessel so suddenly as to arouse suspicion that the process was not natural. He had been charged with plotting the overthrow of the government. Probably had he survived he would have been found guilty and suffered the extreme penalty in a more formal manner. An editor whose property had been taken, and who had been driven from his native land, hardly could have been expected to view with approval the agency of his undoing.

The widow of Senor Durand has sent a message to the president charging him directly with responsibility for the death of her husband. While such a message may not greatly disturb the executive, only a hardened mortal could have received it without a qualm.

Occasionally there is mention of "political prisoners" in this country, meaning a number guilty of active crimes. They had not merely expressed their hatred by words, but violence, or subtle scheming having all the color of treason, were the vehicles of their disregard. The real political prisoner is to be found in other lands and under a different plan of rule. Diaz used to have such prisoners, and Senor Durand was such a prisoner. The so-called political prisoner in the United States is a wholly different type.

SOCIABLE HUMANITY

Purely social organizations are numerous and commendable. Men are stirred by the impulse to accomplish something definite. They desire to bring about a general betterment, or improvement touching some one line of activity. The yearning for fellowship is instinctive. The human soul, as Kipling has said, may be "a very lonely thing," and content at the last with solitude. While it remains the center of a living and alert organism, it seeks company. When men act in concert accomplishment is possible. Thus their tendency to gather in groups naturally leads to achievement.

Such bodies as the Rotarians, Lions, Kiwanis, Optimists, or the Hundred Per Cent club all serve useful purposes. Into each there are drawn citizens of high class. Among them develop ideas that quickly change into action. The good that they do overflows the bounds of their own little unit, and embraces the whole community. They perform kindly deeds. They arouse public spirit. They demand reforms. They hold high the standards of personal conduct. While stimulating business, they direct it into proper channels; hold its methods within bounds. They do not forget charity. The enterprises they endeavor to advance are for the good of all.

Friends seated at the table, discussing whatever circumstances may suggest, are likely to start almost before they realize it, a beneficent movement of importance. If they do not do this, at least they are keeping alive the bonds of fraternity, and this in itself is an object worthy of consideration.

WHEN ROGUES FALL OUT

Away down south in Georgia an Imperial Emperor and an Imperial Wizard, have locked horns, so to speak. An emperor naturally is regarded as a potent force, but it would take a fine emperor to knock out a genuine wizard. A wizard has resources that even a monarch may not command. Somehow the Georgia row recalls the adage wherein is mention of what happens "when rogues fall out." However, an attempt to make this application fit the southerners of sounding title possibly would do both an injustice. Perhaps they are individuals possessed of no worse quality than foolishness. If they were born conditioned thus, to blame them severely would be wrong.

The organization indicated by the titles of the litigants is apparent. The two, manifestly, are the higher ups in k. k. k. circles. It is most desirable that the contest go to a finish, ending with both of them "taking the count." The organization has not been doing so well lately. Perhaps this is the reason that twain fell out. In the waning blaze of glory there was not enough for two to share. It is hard to acquire and retain fame by dressing in sheets, going armed, and beating somebody who is unarmed. At times suspicion has been rife that the real purpose was not the reformation of society at all, but to declare fat dividends from the amounts paid in for regalia. Men actually are believed to pay for the privilege of being members of a masked mob. It is strange but true.

Meanwhile, best wishes to both emperor and wizard. Let it be hoped that the resounding impact as they rush upon each other shall have the effect of knocking a little sense into them.

The importance of trifles seldom has been more startingly illustrated than in the death of the eminent archaeologist, Lord Carnarvon. This man of useful achievement succumbed to the bite of an insect. Doubtless the injury at the time of its infliction was not considered of any moment, and perhaps there was not even consciousness of the tiny puncture.

Faithful Dog or Unfaithful Lover?

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

If the human race were not mad with egomania it would die of horror when contemplating its own iniquities.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

Don't jump. Listen instead. Take the following story as an example of the attitude of innumerable people toward the lower forms of life which love and serve them.

A man of my acquaintance has just broken off an engagement to marry. His sweetheart had an old collie dog which at one time had saved her life.

She was the dog's only friend and, because he loved her and was old, she gave him excellent care, good food and a warm bed.

Now this attention annoyed the man—it seemed to him to detract from his own importance. He demanded that the girl give the dog away or take it to the pound. This she resolutely refused to do. In a rage at being thwarted, the man broke off his engagement after giving her a lecture. He declared that her love and care of this helpless old dog was a very weak spot in her character and evidently tried to punish her by breaking his plighted troth to her.

Of course he was infinitely and exquisitely contemptible. He would have been galvanized with horror had anybody proposed turning him out because he was old and poor; but he was willing to commit this cruelty against a creature whose only offense was that he was a dog, and unable to make his needs vocal.

Another instance just as flagrant is that of a woman who is insistent in her efforts to convert all and sundry to her religious views. She had a puppy, an amiable floppy thing without guile. He loved the children and kept continual watch over the baby, proud of his guardianship.

One day I missed him and asked about him. The "religious" dame smiled piously and said:

"We sent him to the pound. He was getting so big that he was a trouble to me."

Seeing my disapproval, I hope my utter contempt, she defended her view.

"Of course all animals are given for the use of man and——"

"All?" I cut in. "Lions, tigers, crocodiles, wolves, cobras, vipers? Isn't man a little late finding uses for all the animals in the world's menageries?"

But her mind, such as it was, had been kept fact proof and logic tight; and so she could still feel virtuous while consigning to death a little dog that had guarded her baby.

Animals have to be killed yor say? Yea, surely; but if we can't take a little trouble to help those that love us we are deeply unworthy of their unselfish devotion.

If animals were made for man's use surely the least he can do in return for their service is to give them protection, food and a little love.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"WHO DID YOU SAY?"

(Find the error in this article.)

"Who did you say?"

"Come, come, Betty, don't use such English. Whom! Whom did you say?" interrupted Jack. "Never say any of the following: Who did you say? Who were you talking to? Who do you want?

"The following are correct: Whom did you say? Whom were you talking to? Whom do you want?

"May be a little story will help you to understand this problem better," continued Jack. "When you ask a question that begins with whom (or should begin with whom), the whom is like the tail of the horse in a story you have probably heard.

"'Right this way, everybody' shouted the manager of a country-circus-side-show. 'Right this way, and see the horse with his tail where his head ought to be'.

"One don't usually back a horse into a stall. Nor is it customary to say, 'Him do I see'. The approved order is, 'I do see him', or, 'I see him'.

"However, in asking a question, the horse, so to speak, is put into the stall with his head where his tail ought to be, and so we say, 'Whom do I see,?' not, 'I do see whom?'. Although whom comes first, grammatically it is the tail of the sentence; it follows the verb just as him follows the verb in 'I see him'."

"Should one always start a question with whom?"

"No. Only when, in rearranging the words into grammatical order, the result is similar to the following:

"Question: Whom did you ask?

"Grammatical arrangement: You did ask whom?"

(Note: You should no more say, "You did ask who?" than you should say, "You did ask he." Therefore, it is easily seen that "Who did you ask" is wrong; and that "Whom did you ask" is correct.)

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A man with unlimited capital thought to benefit the world.

And he thought over the matter long and prayerfully.

JAMES W. FOLEY

And he took account of the trials and difficulties of the world.

And listed them as they came to his mind.

* * *

And in the list he took account of the following things:

Ill health.
Disease.
Poverty.
Old Age.
Unemployment.

* * *

There are perhaps many other incidental trials and misfortunes in the world, but he felt that the list included most of the greater ones.

So with unlimited capital he set out to do what he could.

For with unlimited capital you can do a great many things.

But you cannot do everything.

* * *

Unlimited capital will not make the foolish wise.

It will not make the lazy industrious.

It will not make the thriftless thrifty.

It will not make the spendthrift provident.

It will not make the quarrelsome peaceful.

It will not make the criminal law-abiding.

* * *

So there are limits to the possibilities even of unlimited capital.

Some things must be left to the initiative and spirit of the individual.

But the man with unlimited capital meant to do the best he could.

So he set out to do it.

* *

First he established a bureau of age insurance.

After a certain age everybody would be pensioned.

No longer any fear of helplessness and poverty and dreary days of need and want and loneliness.

And that seemed a way of helping the world.

But he found that as one result, many persons thought less of thrift.

Why thrift when age would be cared for?

So there was a slacking of work in many places.

Production was less.

Spending was free.

* * *

And even if illness came, there were hospitals where the sick could be treated without cost.

For the rich man had provided that.

So sickness need not be feared.

And even unemployment was not dreaded.

For that was insured against.

* * *

And as a result of age insurance and disease insurance and poverty insurance and employment insurance and a lot of other things, many persons, while comforted perhaps in mind, grew weaker in fibre.

For they no longer had to worry about themselves.

Work was not essential.

Saving was unnecessary.

* * *

And many persons were helped without doubt.

And many were weakened.

For they grew to depend upon others and not upon themselves.

And many who might have struggled and become strong, stopped struggling and became weak.

And the man with unlimited capital set to thinking again.

And he is still wondering how a man with unlimited capital could spend it to the greatest benefit of the world.

Songs of the Poets

'Love Hath a Language"—By Helen Selina Sheridan

Love hath a language for all years—
Fond hieroglyphs, obscure and old—
Wherein the heart reads, writ in tears,
The tale that never yet was told.

Love hath his meter too, to trace
Those bounds which never yet were given—
To measure that which mocks at space,
As deep as death and high as heaven.

Love hath his treasure hoards, to pay
True faith, or goodly service done—
Dear priceless nothings, which outweigh
All riches that the sun shines on.

GIVE BOOKS TO GRADUATES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

AS YOU look about for some present to give to the graduate, permit us to suggest a book.

Of all presents, the one that is best suited as the vehicle of friendship is a book.

Of course, selecting a book may be difficult. And then, you may be embarrassed in the same way that the shop girl was in the classic story, which tells of how her objection to giving her friend Mame a book was, "Aw, she's got a book."

In other words, another book is always welcome, even if the recipient already has one.

A book carries with it something of your own spirit. Its contents have intrigued you. Its flavor has appealed to you. Its message has found an echo in you. What more appropriate thing can you do for a friend than to pass on this impression?

In giving a book, select one that you have read yourself and liked, not one that you have heard the mob crying about.

It may be some story that has opened up a new door in your imagination, such as "If Winter Comes."

It may be some warm and human interpretation of nature, such as W. H. Hudson's "A Hind in Richmond Park."

It may be some collection of vivid short stories, such as Tyra Samter Winslow's "Picture Frames," or Harvey O'Higgins' "Some Distinguished Americans," or Anzia Yezierska's "Hungry Hearts."

It may be some useful book of reference, such as the last edition of Hoyt's "Cyclopedia of Practical Quotations," or Hill's "The World's Great Religious Poetry," or the incomparable Roget's "Thesaurus."

It may be some book that shall make religion clearer, such as Papini's "Life of Christ," or Basil King's "Conquest of Fear."

It may be some book that will help to make science vital and interesting, as Slosson's "Creative Chemistry," or Thomson's "Outline of Science."

It may be some book of history, like Wells' "Outline of History."

Or it may be some edition of the old masters, a volume of Keats, or Francis Thompson, or Victor Hugo.

Go down to your book store and spend an hour. But, above all things, read the book before you give it, and have it pass through your personality.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

LEGACY TO COMING AGES

[Hartford Times]

Suppose our American civilization should be entombed now and discovered anew by excavators in the far distant future. What would they find? Porcelain bathtubs, radio sets, safety razors, reapers and binders, rotary presses, celluloid campaign buttons, gin bottles with forged labels, Ku Klux Klan regalia, telautographs, ten-inch cigarette holders, cocktail shakers, steel filing cabinets, dinner gongs, manicure sets, purple velour davenports, section bookcases—Yes, the explorer would have a considerable time speculating on the purposes for which these miscellaneous and seemingly absurd articles were used.

But how many beautiful paintings would he discover, the work of our own "artists of the period?" How many examples of beautiful sculpture? How many evidences that America loved the arts for their own sake and appreciated great literature? Would the Dr. Carter of that day praise our inventive genius or would he say that ours was a "fabricated civilization," an age that was content to make its ideal the production of endless trifles for its passing amusement? Would he tell the newspaper men that the three-inch earrings found in the mausoleum of a twentieth century American woman were worn for their intrinsic beauty, or because everyone in that particular period was wearing them? Would he conclude that ours was an age of great writing because everybody owned a fountain pen or that Americans were inventive geniuses because most of them owned automobiles?

Of course, a civilization is not to be approved or condemned entirely by what is buried with it. Doubtless the Egyptian fellahs, as they toiled in the broiling sun to build pyramids and sphinxes for the pharoahs, would have gladly exchanged their lot for that of the humblest helper in a modern construction gang equipped with a steam hoist derrick. And Tutankhamen's dressmaker would have been glad of a sewing machine. Perhaps the king himself died at eighteen for want of antitoxin. There are, nevertheless, items on the debit account of a mechanical age. It is profitable once in a while to think of them.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Conan Doyle ever will be welcome in this country. He is a genial gentleman, and the creator of Sherlock Holmes, who was a detective of more than human insight. It was a mistake, however, on the part of Doyle to make Holmes a dope fiend. No telling how many an aspiring young sleuth this has set off wrong.

HENRY JAMES.

Doyle was able to delight by his fiction before he got the notion, which seems little short of an obsession, that the fiction he is dealing in now is the truth. The novelist is not respected less because he does not believe his own stories. When the novelist, however, has turned lecturer, he is bound to believe that which he delivers to the audience. At once his intellectual reputation is at stake. Doyle has faith in himself and his performing spirits; faith, and courage to defend it. At the same time he is risking much. To a large proportion of the great throng that he now addresses, his theories seem to border on the insane, and his cited proofs appear as nothing that might not be duplicated by any master of legerdemain.

Doyle professes to have received messages from those ordinarily rated as dead. Of course if they are sending messages, they are not dead in any important sense, but merely have cast off the trammels of the flesh. If it is their privilege to wander among the worlds, they are more alive than ever. It is easy to grant that the dead are dead only in that they have changed. The signs that come back as from them do not convince many; they convinced Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge, but still not many. Too often have swindles in this connection been exposed.

But why is it that the spirit of one reckoned wise on earth, would take the trouble to come back and prattle nonsense? William James, great pyschologist, essaying to talk out of the shadows, shows forth the mentality of an eight-year-old boy, not overly bright lad at that. Doyle ought to explain this. Explanation would be more potent than "spirit-photographs," such as may be made by any photographer who wants to play a trick on his friends.

For misbehavior on the street, involving insults to women, a ruffian has been sentenced to two jail terms of 180 days each. The first will be served in the Los Angeles county jail, and the second in the new jail at Long Beach.

Almost everybody knows what the Los Angeles county jail is—probably the worst in civilization. After spending 180 days there, and then going to a cleaner and more kindly jail, of more space and fewer smells, the sinner won't mind the second half of his incarceration at all. He'll regard it as a picnic.

The helmet worn by Magellan is said to have been found in the Philippines. At any rate some helmet of brass, bearing the scars of sound buffets, has been found there. It might as well be Magellan's. Indeed, in the interest of the trade in antiques, it ought to be, if it isn't.

Nothing has come yet of the quest for the helmet of Navarre.

It is said that a new mystery woman, a person of prominence, has entered the Dorothy Keenan case. If so, she might as well go out again. In determining who is guilty of murder, there never is desire to place responsibility on a person of prominence. The presence of such a person is nothing less than embarrassing to the gentlemen whose labors turn the wheels of justice. A Philadelphia millionaire got into this particular case for awhile, and nearly gummed up the works.

In the multiplicity of similar incidents, it may be remarked that Dorothy was a pretty girl, a model part of the time; that she had money and jewels, and these were taken away from her in a manner causing her death.

They are worth money. The kindly proprietor happened to have a roll of bills, and told the visitor she might bless the roll if she desired. She did it. Got away with forty dollars, too, and probably as she goes her way, continues to bless the roll and the kindly proprietor.

For years Los Angeles had talked of having a public library building before bonds were issued for the purpose. A site was procured, and plans accepted. A great hill was graded down to make room for the structure. Now comes the art commission to say that neither the site nor the plans are acceptable to that body.

There seems to be a non-essential row over every effort to make a public improvement.

The state assembly has passed, by a vote of 70 to 1, an act endorsing the Sheppard-Townley measure. By the latter the federal government co-operates with the state in the matter of infant hygiene.

The government has been slow in arriving at the conclusion that human stock is as worthy of attention as barnyard stock. For this it has been adversely criticized. On the other hand, there are some who protest against any action at all, asserting it to be a medical scheme.

There seems to be no method by which a government may do anything or do nothing, and avoid being kicked.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN DILGRIM

Ever notice what a fascination a gang of men at work has for the passer-by? Show me seven large, buck-colored huskies at work with pinch-bars and I'll give up the matinee cheerfully. There must be some psychological reason for it. Fraud could prove that I have a wicked mind. My only defense is that every one else has, too. Anyhow, I stood on the curb this morning.

"Get under it," said the foreman of the pinch-bar orchestra. "Get under it. Now—all together."

The seven huskies strained and swelled in the face and you could almost hear their muscles crack. Then they gave way.

"Can't lif' that, nohow," was the opinion of the seven. "No, suh. It can't be did."

The foreman looked at them.

"Listen," he said. "This time you lift. Understand? You lif' harder than you did before."

They did. And nothing gave way except buttons. The foreman is a man of passion and extraordinary command of language.

"Every one of you lifted the last pound what he could," said the foreman. "I know that. All you bones' boys, and wouldn't do me no dirty tricks. But this time you goin' lif' more than you can. Every one of you goin' lif' twice as much as you lif' before, and hold it longer and lif' it higher. Else I'm goin' have new gang."

Now, that foreman was dead right. Every one of them had lifted as much as he could. Each had put his whole strength into it. They were good, willing, honest men. But when they were called on to lift more than they could——

They did. There's a moral.

TO THE VOTERS OF GLENDALE

Tomorrow is Legion Day
Does Glendale Post No. 127 Win or Lose

VOTE "YES" ON NUMBER 7

For three years, Glendale's soldiers, sent into the inferno of the great war (or at least those who came back), have striven faithfully to "carry on." They have done their "bit" in every walk of life and believe sincerely that their efforts both as individuals and as an organization have made Glendale some happier and better. They hope to do even more in service in the future than they have in the past.

The Post needs a home—a foundation — upon which it may grow in numbers and strength, and which can be made a patriotic center. The old reservoir site, in the hills at Campbell and Mountain streets, now owned but unused by the city of Glendale, which acquired it practically without cost some years ago, offers the Post the chance to get a start towards a real home. The Post asks the voters tomorrow to authorize the council to sell this lot to the Legion at a nominal price, to be used by the Post either as a site upon which to build a club and home for the Legion, Auxiliary and their Scout troops, and to house all other Veteran and Patriotic Societies, including the National Guard, which may desire to use it; or, as a means to purchase or in exchange for a more centrally located site outside a residential zone, if conditions warrant such a move.

Glendale Post asks the voters to authorize the council to sell this lot to the Legion, by voting "Yes" on Proposition No. 7, on Tnesday's ballot

CONNECTICUT AND RHODE ISLAND PICNICS

Dr. G. H. MacNeill, phone 64523, president of the Connecticut Society of Southern California, and Stephen A. MacNeill, phone Broadway 7640, president of the Rhode Islanders, call on all who have ever lived in these states to meet for a great picnic reunion, all day, Saturday, April 14, in Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles. Come early and spend the day with friends. There will be county registers and headquarters so that one can find the old neighbors even with thousands present. The main purpose will be to have a good time. Former residents are all invited and should attend so as to make these the greatest picnics in our history. Bring your baskets well filled and share with friends. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the souvenir badges. Tables can be reserved for college, county, or town reunions. Each one who learns of this picnic is asked to pass the word along. Further information may be had of the presidents, or of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Continental National Bank, Main at Ninth, Los Angeles, phone 10261, where our registers are kept on file and all may see them.

Beneficial Term Savings Account

The Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, a short time ago, mailed a number of Beneficial Term Savings Account Books to prospective savings depositors, which in the aggregate have a value of over one thousand dollars ($1,000.00).

Each book contains a deposit of one dollar ($1.00), made by the bank, and as there are a few who have not furnished us with the necessary signature cards for our records, we are going to extend the privilege of these accounts for a short time.

Additional books under this liberal plan may be had upon request at our Brand Boulevard or Glendale Avenue Branches.

CANDIDATES' FORUM

This department will be at the service of all candidates and their supporters for the city council for the expression of their views and the publication of their platforms, without charge, from now until the close of the campaign. The only condition attached to publication of matter in this column is that it shall be courteous, controlled by desire to benefit Glendale, and differences of opinion must be stated temperately, if argumentative. The standing of the candidates in the community, the personal sacrifices involved in serving the city would of themselves eliminate personalities, without this statement. Manuscripts must be typewritten and on one side of the paper. Brevity is the soul of argument.

Editor Glendale Daily Press:

As a candidate for the Glendale city council at the coming election next Tuesday, I want to appeal to the voters of Glendale, through the columns of your valuable paper, for their support at the polls. I have been a resident of Los Angeles county for the past 12 years and have lived in Glendale at 342 El Bonito avenue for nearly six years. During the past two years I have been active in civic afafirs, serving on several committees of the chamber of commerce as well as the sewer committee of the city, and doing everything in my power to promote the interests of the city of Glendale. Have been engaged in the real estate and insurance business with offices now at 1801 South Brand boulevard for the past two years before which time I was connected with the Santa Fe railroad in Los Angeles in charge of transportation and for this reason have devoted considerable time to the transportation problem here, realizing that it was one of the most important features confronting the residents of Glendale today and I am pleased to say that I now feel we will have within a short time such transportation as will take care of our needs.

I am a member of the Elks, Masons, and chamber of commerce.

If elected on April 10 I will do all in my power to further the interests of Glendale as a city to be proud of and will serve the people as a whole to the best of my ability.

In conclusion I would like to ask that the voters of the city make it their personal duty to get out to the polls on election day and elect two men to the city council in whom they can place their confidence.

SIDNEY S. GILHULY.

Glendale, Calif., April 6, 1923.
Capt. Thomas D. Watson:

If elected as councilman of the city of Glendale, I pledge myself to work in the interests of its citizenry and at no time forget that I am employed by them, and that their legitimate wishes are commands.

I will work honestly and for the best interests of Glendale.

If honored with the voters' confidence, nothing can influence me to betray that confidence.

The foregoing is my platform and I mean every word of it.

My qualifications for the position are: extensive experience in different lines of business, have been a clerk, chief clerk, chief bookkeeper and a credit man for one of the largest concerns in the country; prepared for certified public accountant, and graduated in commercial law. I have always been fair and square and have an honorable record that I am proud of. I have been in California about three years, and am a property owner here. My two uncles came to California in 1849 and remained here, and my good father came here 40 years ago and died in California.

I am in Glendale to remain, and am a candidate for the express and only purpose of working in the interests of fellow tax payers. My small real estate and insurance business will not interefer with civic duties.

I advocate a closer relationship between our chamber of commerce and city officials, and the citizens in general.

I am a master mason, royal arch, council, Knight Templar and am a member of the Illinoir Masonic Veterans association.

I am not afraid to say what I think of conditions past or present and if the voters want that kind of a councilman, I would appreciate their suffrage.

Yours very truly,
ALLEN O. MARTIN.

To the Editor of the Daily Press:

Taxpayers, attention, protect your interests.

On election day, April 10, there are issues to be decided which should be seriously considered before voting. The choice of candidates for the city council will be decided by the voter through his sympathies or antipathies toward the different aspirants and the confidence they inspire. All candidates alike make extravagant promises before election; their action after election, however, is often a different matter. It is taken for granted all councilmen will be guided by intellect and conscience in all matters civic or political; conscience and intellect are of such a flexible quality and quantity in many that there is no guarantee to campaign promises.

It behooves the voter not only to choose carefully the men for the city council but to vote with deliberation on the other issues to be decided. The amendments to the city charter should be carefully weighed since they aim at more efficient and expeditious handling of city affairs. These amendments number six, and we think ought to be voted for, with the exception of No. 1, which is loosely drawn and leaves room for considerable abuse, nullifying in a large measure the restrictive clauses in the charter, placed there for the purpose of preventing large expenditures without first consulting the voters. No. 4 also should be defeated. It provides for reducing the time in which an ordinance may be passed after presentation from five to two days. Judging from past acts when the council passed the Verdugo park and airport deal over night, the latter the council now tacitly admits was unwise by coming before the people for a bond issue and the park cannot be explained on any honest basis, the time of passing ordinances should be increased rather than reduced.

On the bond issue it is well to be doubly careful or there may be unavailing regret. The purchase of this tract of thirty-three acres has been commended and endorsed by some of the largest and also some of the noisest clubs and organizations in the city; and even the press has boosted it. It may not be amiss, therefore, to offer here a few sober arguments against the whole purchase, fair isn't it to hear both sides to the question? Aside from the ethical aspect, or impropriety of buying it with the taxpayers' money without in any way consulting them, let us analyze the main practical reasons offered for its purchase.

1. Water bearing land. Here we find the city of Los Angeles has prior right to all water of the San Fernando valley. This right established by a decision of the supreme court. And exception is made in the deed. Therefore the city of Glendale did not and cannot purchase the right to the water underlying this land. On the other hand the city of Glendale owns a controlling interest in the Verdugo Canyon Water company, pure, cool, mountain spring water. Experts advise that Verdugo canyon water can be developed into over 400 miners inches continuous supply, greatly augmented over seven months of the rainy season. The $66,000 would have fuly developed this splendid gravity flow and thus eliminated a heavy overhead expense of pumping from the river bed; and because this flow is filtered thru millions of tons of sand and gravel it is unquestionably pure and healthy, and can be absolutely protected against pollution; whereas, the present supply is not and cannot be.

2. It is intended to use the surface of the land for industrial purposes. This destroys absolutely the first reason. Factories, etc., mean the employment of a large number of people. This requires sewage disposal. Hence unavoidable contamination of our water supply immediately under and adjoining. The city officials with great pride enumerate the large number of industries that they have now tentative leases with. First and foremost, the Pep Chamical company, manufacturers of commercial fertilizer. Think of it! Residents of the west and northwest! With prevailing winds from the west and southwest, how pleasant it will be wafting its sweet odors into your homes! A fertilizer plant admittedly with a "sulphur base." Sulphur in chemical solution is about the most disagreeable and repugnant stench that can be thought of. Fine advertising feature for the prospective buyer of a residence in the beautiful northwest. Imagine the real estate men going into rhapsodies, "yes, this is the most beautiful and exclusive section of Glendale, the most superb views, invigorating, cooling breezes from the sea, purified and ozonized by the fertilizer plant "with a sulphur base" close by.

From a strictly business standpoint it is questionable: It is stated the city will receive from this unthinkable nuisance a rental of $800 per year for the four acres this odorous company expects to occupy. What fine business acumen the city fathers must possess in driving such a sweet scented bargain. $800, mind you, not $8000! Then how delighted other industries will be to have a fertilizer plant as their neighbor and how eager workmen will be to work in such pleasant surroundings. A machine shop, shoe factory, or bakery would jump at the opportunity for a site in such an environment. As an alternative to an airport, would suggest the city establish an auto camp under decent, sanitary conditions which would be a credit and of inestimably more advertising value than an airport which city officials now know is not practicable on such a small space, and admit to their friends they are merely using it to gain an endorsement as officials.

Glendale Press.

Dear Sir:—Qualifications as to fitness of candidates for the coming municipal election. It's not what a man has been that counts, but what he is today. So if its pedigree that's wanted, here goes:

Born in London, England, January 4, 1864, that makes me nearly 60 years young. Still feel fit and fine like an 18 year older. Sang as a choir boy in Westminster Abbey over 50 years ago, an Oxford University education, served with distinction in the late South African Boer war with Lord Roberts, Kitchener, French and Baden Powell; came to this country over 20 years ago, taking out my first naturalization papers a week after landing, thus showing my good intentions by supporting the country where my bread was buttered; have been and am now a 100 per cent American. Citizen over 15 years; retired after 15 years' active, successful business life in Glendale.

As a business man I feel I can use the knowledge thus gained for the town I live in, trying to curtail any extravagant expenditure of the taxpayers' money, tending, if possible, towards a taxless city. My interests are for a Greater Glendale — improvements with economy.

Being on the retired list I can give my whole and undivided time to the city's needs. As I travel around I notice the requirements, and if elected I shall serve the people honestly and faithfully, without fear or favor, and any questions coming forward entailing a large expenditure, shall be brought before the taxpayers to decide upon. Our trustees are elected by the people who put their trust in them and must not be influenced by any small body or so-called clique or organized faction, to consider suggestions or recommendations and administer the same in a fair and impartial manner.

I am a Master Mason of the Glendale lodge; also a member of the St. Mark's Episcopal church.

If the electorate consider my qualifications satisfactory as being a fit and proper person to represent them in the city council of the finest little and cleanest city in this great American country, I promise to do all in my power to stand by my platform—a clean city kept clean.

Yours very truly,
FRANK BOOTH.

Editor Glendale Press:

I want to express to you my thanks for throwing your columns open to the candidates for city councilman, that they may tell of their own qualifications for that office. I find it hard to "blow my own Horn" to do this, for all through my life I have tried to do my work so well that others would be able to speak for me.

Having started out in the business world when I was only fourteen years of age, working my way through the schools, and being very active, I feel that I have "bumped" up against some of the keenest problems found in the business world. You may say—what has this to do with being councilman?

Well, I have always felt that the business of a city or municipality, should be carried on in just as careful and economical way as any private business would be. The most modern methods should be employed to give to the community the very best for their money that is possible. Each department should be held responsible for getting the best results, with the amount allotted to them by the carefully prepared budget.

The more than twenty years which I spent as a general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association was mostly devoted to wrestling with financial problems and the reorganization and the erection of new buildings. Seventeen years ago I was privileged to reorganize the work and secure a new building at Oakland, and my last field was in Honolulu, Hawaii, where we organized the work for the army and navy department, and secured a property valued at about $300,000 for that work. These and several other experiences of this kind I feel should give me some qualification for a position as councilman of our fair city.

Any of my close friends will bear me out, when I say, that if elected to this position the interests of our city administration will get the very best there is in me. This I will gladly give if you decide to elect me to that office.

Sincerely Yours,
W.A.HORN.

I am for a Greater Glendale, first, last and all the time, one that will make other cities look up and take notice that we are on the map. To accomplish this it is absolutely necessary that we should have the most efficient management that it is possible to attain, and our tax levies should be just and equitable.

We must figure for the future, because our fair city is bound to grow by leaps and bounds. The sewer proposition must have prompt attention. Street work must have careful consideration and we must also have lower transportation.

We must not forget the boys and girls of our city. They should and must be provided with well managed and equipped playgrounds and recreation centers where they can enjoy healthful and pleasant recreations, which they need, and keep them at home in our own city, instead of sending them off to other places for their pleasures, where the influences may not be for the best.

ASA HALL,
Candidate for City Council, Election, April 10, 1923.

To the Citizens of Glendale:

I am a candidate for one of the two vacancies of councilmen for Glendale and ask your support at the polls.

My platform is not filled with promises and my motto is:

Elect a business man to help run the city's business.

I have been in Glendale eleven years, being with Glendale Hardware company most of the time as its manager. I am a member of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, Credit Association, Elks and Masonic lodges, secretary of Kiwanis club, and feel that I am capable to give the people a business administration

DR. FUNK TELLS OF COMMUNION OF SAINTS

Speaking on the subject of "The Communion of Saints," Dr. Funk declared at the First Lutheran church yesterday that some scientists have tried to discover the origin of man among the lowest order of brutes.

"Our creed," he said, "encourages us to look to a higher source for the beginning of mankind. Here we find him in the Garden of Eden, created—not in the form of an ape—but in the likeness of the image of God. Instead of trying to show that man has arisen from the lowest and most degraded forms and types of savages, why not go back to Babylon, to ancient Greece and Rome, and consider the evidences which go to show that "God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life'? In short, why not consider the proofs that man has fallen from a high state through disobedience. Here is hope; here is restoration. Here the origin of man is exalted; for he is an heir of God, and a joint heir together with Jesus Christ, His Son."

Loder made no movement. "You must explain," he said, very quietly.

Lillian smiled. "That's just what I want to do. When I was in my tent on the night of Blanche's party, a man came to be gazed for. He came just like anybody else, and laid his hands upon the table. He had strong, thin hands like—well, rather like yours. But he wore two rings on the third finger of his left hand—a heavy signet-ring and a plain gold one."

Loder moved his hand imperceptibly till the cushion covered it. Lillian's words caused him no surprise, scarcely even any trepidation. He felt now that he had expected them, even waited for them, all along.

"I asked him to take off his rings," she went on, "and just for a second he hesitated—I could feel him hesitate; then he seemed to make up his mind, for he drew them off. He drew them off, Jack, and guess what I saw! Do guess!"

For the first time Loder involuntarily drew back into the corner of the couch. "I never guess," he said, brusquely.

"Then I'll tell you. His hands were the hands of my Englishman! The rings covered the scar made by Ko Ko's teeth. I knew it instantly—the second my eyes rested on it. It was the same scar that I had bound up dozens of times—that I had seen healed before I left Santaslare."

"And you? What did you do?" Loder felt it singularly difficult and unpleasant to speak.

"Ah, that's the point. That's where I was stupid and made my mistake. I should have spoken to him on the moment, but I didn't. You know how one sometimes hesitates. Afterwards it was too late."

"But you saw him afterwards—in the rooms?" Loder spoke unwillingly.

"No, I didn't—that's the other point. I didn't see him in the rooms, and I haven't seen him since. Directly he was gone, I left the tent—I pretended to be hungry and bored; but, though I went through every room, he was nowhere ro be found. Once—" she hesitated and laughed again—"once I thought I had found him, but it was only you—you, as you stood in that door-way with your mouth and chin hidden by Leonard Kaines' head. Wasn't it a quaint mistake?"

There was an uncertain pause. Then Loder, feeling the need of speech, broke the silence suddenly. "Where do I come in?" he asked abruptly. "What am I wanted for?"

"To help to throw light on the mystery! I've seen Blanche's list of people, and there wasn't a man I couldn't place—no outsider ever squeezes through Blanche's door. I have questioned Bobby Blessington, but he can't remember who came to the tent last. And Bobby was supposed to have kept count!" She spoke in deep scorn; but almost immediately the scorn faded and she smiled again. "Now that I've explained Jack," she added, "what do you suggest?"

Then for the first time Loder knew what his presence in the room really meant; and at best the knowledge was disconcerting. It is not every day that a man is called upon to unearth himself.

"Suggest?" he repeated, blankly.

"Yes. I'd rather have your idea of the affair than anybody else's. You are so clear and sarcastic and keen that you can't help getting straight at the middle of a fact."

When Lillian wanted anything she could be very sweet. She suddenly dropped her half-petulant tone; she suddenly ceased to be a spoiled child. With a perfectly graceful movement she drew quite close to Loder and slid gently to her knees.

This is an attitude that few women can safely assume; it requires all the attributes of youth, suppleness, and a certain buoyant ease. But Lillian never acted without justification, and as she leaned towards Loder her face lifted, her slight figure and pale hair softened by the firelight, she made a picture that it would have been difficult to criticise.

But the person who should have appreciated it stared steadily beyond it to the fire. His mind was absorbed by one question—the question of how he might reasonably leave the house before discovery became assured.

Lillian, attentively watchful of him, saw the uneasy look, and her own face fell. But, as she looked, an inspiration came to her—a remembrance of many interviews with Chilcote smoothed and facilitated by the timely use of tobacco.

"Jack," she said, softly, "before you say another word I insist on your lighting a cigarette." She leaned forward, resting against his knee.

At her words Loder's eyes left the fire. His attention was suddenly needed for a new and more imminent difficulty. "Thanks!" he said, quickly. "I—I have no wish to smoke."

"It isn't a matter of what you wish but of what I say." She smiled. She knew that Chilcote with a cigarette between his lips was infinitely more tractable than Chilcote sitting idle, and she had no intention of ignoring the knowledge.

But Loder caught at her words. "Before you ordered me to smoke," he said, "you told me to give you some advice. Your first command must have prior claim." He grasped unhesitatingly at the less risky theme.

She looked up at him. "You're always nicer when you smoke," she persisted, caressingly. "Light a cigarette—and give me one."

Loder's mouth became set. "No," he said, "we'll stick to this advice business. It interests me."

"Yes—afterwards."

"No, now. You want to find out why this Englishman from Italy was at your sister's party, and why he disappeared?"

There are times when a malignant obstinacy seems to affect certain people. The only answer Lillian made was to pass her hand over Loder's waistcoat, and feeling his cigarette case, to draw it from the pocket.

He affected not to see it. "Do you think he recognized you in that tent?" he insisted, desperately.

She held out the case. "Here are your cigarettes. You know we're always more social when we smoke."

In the short interval while she looked up into his face several ideas passed through Loder's mind. He thought of standing up suddenly and so regaining his advantage; he wondered quickly whether one hand could possibly suffice for the taking out and lighting of two cigarettes. Then all need for speculation was pushed suddenly aside.

Lillian, looking into his face, saw his fresh look of disturbance, and from long experience again changed her tactics. Laying the cigarette-case on the couch, she put one hand on his shoulder, the other on his left arm. Hundreds of times this caressing touch had quieted Chilcote.

"Dear old boy!" she said, soothingly, her hand moving slowly down his arm.

In a flash of understanding the consequences of this position came to him. Action was imperative, at whatever risk. With an abrupt gesture he rose.

The movement was awkward. He got to his feet precipitately; Lillian drew back, surprised and startled, catching involuntarily at his left hand to steady her position.

Her fingers grasped at, then held his. He made no effort to release them. With a dogged acknowledgment, he admitted himself worsted.

How long she stayed immovable, holding his hand, neither of them knew. The process of a woman's instinct is subtle, so obscure, that it would be futile to apply to it the commonplace test of time. She kept her hold tenaciously, as though his fingers possessed some peculiar virtue; then at last she spoke:

"Rings, Jack?" she said, very slowly. And under the two short words a whole world of incredulity and surmise made itself felt.

Loder laughed.

At the sound she dropped his hand and rose from her knees. What her suspicions, what her instincts were she could not have clearly defined, but her action was unhesitating. Without a moment's uncertainty she turned to the fireplace, pressed the electric button, and flooded the room with light.

There is no force so demoralizing as unexpected light. Loder took a step backward, his hand hanging unguarded by his side; and Lillian, stepping forward, caught it again before he could protest. Lifting it quickly, she looked scrutinizingly at the two rings.

All women jump to conclusions, and it is extraordinary how seldom they jump short. Seeing only what Lillian saw, knowing only what she knew, no man would have staked a definite opinion; but the other sex takes a different view. As she stood gazing at the rings her thoughts and her conclusions sped through her mind like arrows—all aimed and all tending towards one point. She remembered the day when she and Chilcote had talked of doubles, her scepticism and his vehement defence of the idea; his sudden interest in the book "Other Men's Shoes," and his anathema against life and its irksome round of duties. She remembered her own first convinced recognition of the eyes that had looked at her in the doorway of her sister's house; and, last of all, she remembered Chilcote's unaccountable avoidance of the same subject of likenesses when she had mentioned it yesterday driving through the Park—and with it his unnecessarily curt repudiation of his former opinions. She reviewed each item, then she raised her head slowly and looked at Loder.

He was prepared for the glance and met it steadily. In the long moment that her eyes searched his face it was she and not he who changed color. She was the first to speak. "You were the man whose hands I saw in the tent," she said. She made the statement in her usual soft tones, but a slight tremor of excitement underran her voice. Poodles, Persian kittens, even crystal gazing-balls, seemed very far away in face of this tangible, fabulous, present interest. "You are not Jack Chilcote," she said, very slowly. "You are wearing his clothes, and speaking in his voice but you are not Jack Chilcote." Her tone quickened with a touch of excitement. "You needn't keep silent and look at me," she said. "I know quite well what I am saying—though I don't understand it, though I have no real proof—" She paused, momentarily disconcerted by her companion's silent and steady gaze, and in the pause a curious and unexpected thing occurred.

Loder laughed suddenly—a full, confident, reassured laugh. All the web of the past half-hour had spun about him, all the intolerable sense of an impending crash, lifted suddenly. He saw his way clearly—and it was Lillian who had opened his eyes.

Still looking at her, he smiled—a smile of reliant determination, such as Chilcote had never worn in his life. And with a calm gesture he released his hand.

"The greatest charm of woman is her imagination," he said, quietly. "Without it there would be no color in life; we would come into and drop out of it with the same uninteresting tone of drab reality." He paused and smiled again.

At his smile, Lillian involuntarily drew back, the color deepening in her cheeks. "Why do you say that?" she asked.

He lifted his head. With each moment he felt more certain of himself. "Because that is my attitude," he said. "As a man I admire your imagination, but as a man I fail to follow your reasoning."

The words and the tone both stung her. "Do you realize the position?" she asked, sharply. "Do you realize that, whatever your plans are, I can spoil them?"

Loder still met her eyes. "I realize nothing of the sort," he said.

"Then you admit that you are not Jack Chilcote?"

"I neither deny nor admit. My identity is obvious. I can get twenty men to swear to it at any moment that you like. The fact that I haven't worn rings till now will scarcely interest them."

"But you do admit—to me, that you are not Jack?"

"I deny nothing—and admit nothing. I still offer my congratulations."

"Upon what?"

"The same possession—your imagination."

Lillian stamped her foot. Then, by a quick effort, she conquered her temper. "Prove me to be wrong!" she said, with a fresh touch of excitement. "Take off your rings and let me see your hand."

With a deliberate gesture Loder put his hand behind his back. "I never gratify childish curiosity," he said, with another smile.

Again a flash of temper crossed her eyes. "Are you sure," she said, "that it is quite wise to talk like that?"

Loder laughed again. "Is that a threat?"

"Perhaps."

"Then it's an empty one."

"Why?"

Before replying he waited a moment, looking down at her.

"I conclude," he began, quietly, "that your idea is to spread this wild, improbable story—to ask people to believe that John Chilcote, whom they see before them, is not John Chilcote, but somebody else. Now you'll find that a harder task than you imagine. This is a sceptical world, and people are absurdly fond of their own eyesight. We are all journalists nowadays—we all want facts. The first thing you will be asked for is your proof. And what does your proof consist of? The circumstance that John Chilcote, who has always despised jewelry, has lately taken to wearing rings! Your own statement, unattended by any witnesses, that with those rings off his finger bears a scar belonging to another man! No; on close examination I scarcely imagine that your case would hold." He stopped, fired by his own logic. The future might be Chilcote's but the present was his; and this present—with its immeasurable possibilities—had been rescued from catastrophe. "No," he said, again. "When you get your proof perhaps we'll have another talk but till then—"

"Till then?" She looked up quickly; but almost at once her question died away.

The door had opened, and the servant who had admitted Loder stood in the opening.

"Dinner is served!" he announced, in his deferential voice.

CHAPTER XXIII

AND Loder dined with Lillian Astrupp. We live in an age when society expects, even exacts, much. He dined, not through bravado and not through cowardice, but because it seemed the obvious, the only thing to do. To him a scene of any description was distasteful; to Lillian it was unknown. In her world people loved or hated, were spiteful or foolish, were even quixotic or dishonorable, but they seldom made scenes. Loder tacitly saw and tacitly accepted this.

Possibly they ate extremely little during the course of the dinner, and talked extraordinarily much on subjects that interested neither; but the main point at least was gained. They dined. The conventionalities were appeased; the silent, watchful servants who waited on them were given no food for comment. The fact that Loder left immediately after dinner, the fact that he paused on the door-step after the hall door had closed behind him, and drew a long, deep breath of relief, held only an individual significance and therefore did not count.

On reaching Chilcote's house he passed at once to the study and dismissed Greening for the night. But scarcely had he taken advantage of his solitude by settling into an armchair and lighting a cigar, than Renwick, displaying an unusual amount of haste and importance, entered the room carrying a letter.

Seeing Loder, he came forward at once. "Mr. Fraide's man brought this, sir," he explained. "He was most particular to give it into my hands—making sure 'twould reach you. He's waiting for an answer, sir."

Loder rose and took the letter, a quick thrill of speculation and interest springing across his mind. During his time of banishment he had followed the political situation with feverish attention, insupportably chafed by the desire to share in it, apprehensively chilled at the thought of Chilcote's possible behavior. He knew that in the comparatively short interval since Parliament had risen no act of aggression had marked the Russian occupation of Meshed, but he also knew that Fraide and his followers looked askance at that great power's amiable attitude, and at sight of his leader's message his intuition stirred.

Turning to the nearest lamp, he tore the envelope open and scanned the letter anxiously. It was written in Fraide's own clear, somewhat old-fashioned writing, and opened with a kindly rebuke for his desertion of him since the day of his speech; then immediately, and with characteristic clearness, it opened up the subject nearest the writer's mind.

Very slowly and attentively Loder read the letter; and with the extreme quiet that with him invariably covered emotion, he moved to the desk, wrote a note, and handed it to the waiting servant. As the man turned towards the door he called him.

"Renwick!" he said, sharply, "when you've given that letter to Mr. Fraide's servant, ask Mrs. Chilcote if she can spare me five minutes."

When Renwick had gone and closed the door behind him, Loder paced the room with feverish activity. In one moment the aspect of life had been changed. Five minutes since he had been glorying in the risk of a barely saved situation; now that situation with its merely social complications had become a matter of small importance.

His long, striding steps had carried him to the fireplace, and his back was towards the door when at last the handle turned. He wheeled round to receive Eve's message; then a look of pleased surprise crossed his face. It was Eve herself who stood in the doorway.

Without hesitation his lips parted. "Eve," he said, abruptly, "I have had great news! Russia has shown her teeth at last. Two caravans belonging to a British trader were yesterday interfered with by a band of Cossacks. The affair occurred a couple of miles outside of Meshed; the traders remonstrated, but the Russians made summary use of their advantage. Two Englishmen were wounded and one of them has since died. Fraide has only now received the news—which cannot be overrated. It gives the precise lever necessary for the big move at the reassembling." He spoke with great earnestness and unusual haste. As he finished he took a step forward. "But that's not all!" he added. "Fraide wants the great move set in motion by a great speech—and he has asked me to make it."

Eve waited. She looked at him in silence; and in that silence he read in her eyes the reflection of his own expression.

"And you?" she asked, in a suppressed voice. "What answer did you give?"

He watched her for an instant, taking a strange pleasure in her flushed face and brilliantly eager eyes; then the joy of conscious strength, the sense of opportunity regained, swept all other considerations out of sight.

"I accepted," he said, quickly. "Could any man who was merely human have done otherwise?"

That was Loder's attitude and action on the night of his jeopardy and his success, and the following day found his mood unchanged. He was one of those rare individuals who never give a promise overnight and regret it in the morning. He was slow to move, but when he did the movement brushed all obstacles aside. In the first days of his usurpation he had gone cautiously, half fascinated, half distrustful; then the reality, the extraordinary tangibility of the position had gripped him when, matching himself for the first time with men of his own caliber, he had learned his real weight on the day of his protest against the Easter adjournment. With that knowledge had been born the dominant factor in his whole scheme—the overwhelming, insistent desire to manifest his power. That desire that is the salvation or the ruin of every strong man who has once realized his strength. Supremacy was the note to which his ambition reached. To trample out Chilcote's footmarks with his own had been his tacit instinct from the first; now it rose paramount. It was the whole theory of creation—the survival of the fittest—the deep, egotistical certainty that he was the better man.

And it was with this conviction that he entered on the vital period of his dual career. The imminent crisis, and his own share in it, absorbed him absolutely. In the weeks that followed his answer to Fraide's proposal he gave himself ungrudgingly to his work. He wrote, read, and planned with tireless energy; he frequently forgot to eat, and slept only through sheer exhaustion; in the fullest sense of the word he lived for the culminating hour that was to bring him failure or success.

He seldom left Grosvenor Square in the days that followed, except to confer with his party. All his interest, all his relaxation even, lay in his work and what pertained to it. His strength as like a solid wall, his intelligence was sharp and keen as steel. The moment was his; and by sheer mastery of will he put other considerations out of sight. He forgot Chilcote and forgot Lillian—not because they escaped his memory, but because he chose to shut them from it.

Of Eve he saw but little in this time of high pressure. When a man touches the core of his capacities, puts his best into the work that in his eyes stands paramount, there is little place for, and no need of woman. She comes before—and after. She inspires, compensates, or completes; but the achievement, the creation, is man's alone. And all true women understand and yield to this unspoken precept.

Eve watched the progress of his labor, and in the depth of her own heart the watching came nearer to actual living than any activity she had known. She was an on-looker—but an on-looker who stood, as it were, on the steps of the arena, who, by a single forward movement, could feel the sand under her feet, the breath of the battle on her face; and in this knowledge she rested satisfied.

There were hours when Loder seemed scarcely conscious of her existence; but on those occasions she smiled in her serene way—and went on waiting. She knew that each day, before the afternoon had passed, he would come into her sitting-room, his face thoughtful, his hands full of books or papers, and, dropping into one of the comfortable, studious chairs, would ask laconically for tea. This was her moment of triumph and recompense—for the very unconsciousness of his coming doubled its value. He would sit for half an hour with a preoccupied glance, or with keen, alert eyes fixed on the fire, while his ideas sorted themselves and fell into line. Sometimes he was silent for the whole half-hour, sometimes he commented to himself as he scanned his notes; but on other and rarer occasions he talked, speaking his thoughts and his theories aloud, with the enjoyment of a man who knows himself fully in his depth, while Eve sipped her tea or stitched peacefully at a strip of embroidery.

On these occasions she made a perfect listener. Here and there she encouraged him with an intelligent remark, but she never interrupted. She knew when to be silent and when to speak; when to merge her own individuality and when to make it felt. In these days of stress and preparation he came to her unconsciously for rest; he treated her as he might have treated a younger brother—relying on her discretion, turning to her as by right for sympathy, comprehension, and friendship. Sometimes, as they sat silent in the richly colored, homelike room, Eve would pause over her embroidery and let her thoughts spin momentarily forward—spin towards the point where, the brunt of his ordeal passed, he must of necessity seek something beyond mere rest. But there her thoughts would inevitably break off and the blood flame quickly into her cheek.

Meanwhile Loder worked persistently. With each day that brought the crisis of Fraide's scheme nearer, his activity increased—and with it an intensifying of the nervous strain. For if he had his hours of exaltation, he also had his hours of black apprehension. It is all very well to exorcise a ghost by sheer strength of will, but one has also to eliminate the idea that gave it existence. Lillian Astrupp, with her unattested evidence and her ephemeral interest, gave him no real uneasiness; but Chilcote and Chilcote's possible summons were matters of graver consideration; and there were times when they loomed very dark and sinister. What if at the very moment of fulfilment—? But invariably he snapped the thread of the supposition and turned with fiercer ardor to his work of preparation.

And so the last morning of his probation dawned, and for the first time he breathed freely.

He rose early on the day that was to witness his great effort and dressed slowly. It was a splendid morning; the spirit of the spring seemed embodied inn the air, in the pale-blue sky, in the shafts of cool sunshine that danced from the mirror to the dressing-table, from the dressing-table to the pictures on the walls of Chilcote's vast room. Inconsequently with its dancing rose a memory of the distant past—a memory of long-forgotten days when, as a child, he had been bidden to watch the same sun perform the same fantastic evolutions. The sight and the thought stirred him curiously with an unlooked-for sense of youth. He drew himself together with an added touch of decision as he passed out into the corridor; and as he walked downstairs he whistled a bar or two of an inspiriting tune.

In the morning-room Eve was already waiting. She looked up, colored, and smiled as he entered. Her face looked very fresh and young and she wore a gown of the same pale blue that she had worn on his first coming.

She looked up from an open letter as he came into the room, and the sun that fell through the window caught her in a shaft of light, intensifying her blue eyes, her blue gown, and the bunch of violets fastened in her belt. To Loder, still under the influence of early memories, she seemed the embodiment of some youthful ideal—something lost, sought for, and found again. Realization of his feeling for her almost came to him as he stood there looking at her. It hovered about him; it tipped him, as it were, with its wings; then it rose again and soared away. Men like him—men keen to grasp an opening where their careers are concerned, and tenacious to hold it when once grasped—are frequently the last to look into their own hearts. He glanced at Eve, he acknowledged the stir of his feeling, but he made no attempt to define its cause. He could no more have given reason for his sensations than he could have told the precise date upon which, coming down-stairs at eight o'clock, he had first found her waiting breakfast for him. The time when all such incidents were to stand out, each to a nicety in its appointed place, had not yet arrived. For the moment his youth had returned to him; he possessed the knowledge of work done, the sense of present companionship in a world of agreeable things; above all, the steady, quiet conviction of his own capacity. All these things came to him in the moment of his entering the room, greeting Eve, and passing to the breakfast-table; then, while his eyes still rested contentedly on the pleasant array of china and silver, while his senses were still alive to the fresh, earthly scent of Eve's violets, the blow so long dreaded—so slow in coming—fell with accumulated force.

CHAPTER XXIV

THE letter through which the blow fell was not voluminous. It was written on cheap paper in a disguised hand, and the contents covered only half a page. Loder read it slowly, mentally articulating every word; then he laid it down, and as he did so he caught Eve's eyes raised in concern. Again he saw something of his own feelings reflected in her face, and the shock braced him; he picked up the letter, tearing it into strips.

"I must go out," he said, slowly. "I must go now—at once." His voice was hard.

Eve's surprised, concerned eyes still searched his. "Now—at once?" she repeated. "Now—without breakfast?"

"I'm not hungry." He rose from his seat, and, carrying the slips of paper across the room, dropped them into the fire. He did it, not so much from caution, as from an imperative wish to do something, to move, if only across the room.

Eve's glance followed him. "Is it bad news?" she asked, anxiously. "It was unlike her to be insistent, but she was moved to the impulse by the peculiarity of the moment.

"No," he said shortly. "It's—business. This was written yesterday; I should have got it last night."

Her eyes widened. "But nobody does business at eight in the morning—" she began, in astonishment; then she suddenly broke off.

Without apology or farewell, Loder had left the fireplace and walked out of the room.

He passed through the hall hurriedly, picking up a hat as he went; and, reaching the pavement outside, he went straight forward until Grosvenor Square was left behind; then he ran. At the risk of reputation, at the loss of dignity, he ran until he saw a cab. Hailing it, he sprang inside, and, as the cabman whipped up and the horse responded to the call, he realized for the first time the full significance of what had occurred.

To be continued.

THE CHARACTERS IN THE STORY

JOHN CHILCOTE, member of the House of Commons, a party to a marriage of convention and confirmed drug addict, changes places in life with

JOHN LODER, who is his exact counterpart in appearance. So successful is the deception that the masterful Loder becomes not only the strong political lieutenant of

FRAIDE, the great party leader, but is not suspected by the servants or by Chilcote's beautiful and unhappy wife,

EVE, who, however, is mystified by her husband's change in manner. At a social function Loder is inveigled into a darkened tent, where

LADY LILLIAN ASTRUPP, close associate of Chilcote, indulging her hobby of crystal-gazing, makes him remove his rings, exposing the give-away scar on his finger. Loder successfully eludes her without explanation. He recognizes her as the woman who had embittered him in a love affair. Next day his fears are submerged by the interest he takes in the political situation growing out of Russia's act in despatching a large force to the seat of the insurrection against the Shah in Persia. He appears as spokesman for his party in Parliament delivering a brilliant address attacking the government's lax policy. He is enjoying the thrill of this political triumph when recalled by Chilcote, who resumes his own life. Chilcote meets Lady Lillian and makes an appointment to dine with her the next day. He forgets all about the appointment and again changes places with Loder, who, noting the date and the phrase "Talk With L" in Chilcote's engagement book, mistakes it for an appointment with LAKELY, publisher of St. George's. Loder is startled when he is ushered into Lady Astrupp's home and presence instead. She briefly sketched an early love affair and then tells Loder than the man who figured in it turned up the other night at Lady Bramfell's party, providing a deep and thrilling mystery.

"Eve," he said, without looking around, "I want your help." [Guy Bates Post as John Loder and Ruth Sinclair as Eve Chilcote in "The Masquerader."]

KIWANIS CLUB IS WELCOMED TO CLUBHOUSE

Mrs. Daniel Campbell Greets Club on First Meeting

By W. L. TAYLOR

In a neat little speech that had the true ring, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, heartily welcomed the Glendale Kiwanis club at its luncheon Friday noon in the new Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, corner Central and Lexington. Mrs. Campbell stated that she considered it an honor to welcome such a representative body of men to the club's new home, and she extended an invitation to the Glendale Kiwanis club to use the clubhouse as its permanent luncheon headquarters. She was very happy to know that the Kiwanis had seen fit to put on its big entertainment in the auditorium of the clubhouse on April 14, when the Orpheus four and chorus will come here for an evening's entertainment.

"We need the strong cooperation of every organization in Glendale," said Mrs. Campbell, "to make the clubhouse a success. We went in debt for a large amount to provide this splendid clubhouse for Glendale, and we have to have the help of everyone in paying out and making our institution a strong factor in the civic and social life of the community," concluded the able president.

Mrs. Campbell introduced Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice president of the Tuesday Afternoon club by saying, "If she turned her attention and executive ability to making money, her husband would be a millionaire soon." A fine luncheon was provided by the Tuesday Afternoon club members.

W. R. Brown, Kiwanis district governor for California and Nevada, spoke of the ideals of Kiwanis. "Happiness is something you get by being democratic," said Mr. Brown.

"Kiwanis is an institution that aims to fill a need," continued the speaker, "and that need is enlightenment and happiness. There is a very bad tendency these days towards discourtesy. We see it on every hand. We have made too much money during the last few years, and it has made us forget the finer things of life. When a man is poor or in need he caters to his customers and shows courtesy and friendship to his friends, acquaintances and those with whom he comes in contact. We must get back to these fundamental principles if we would get the most out of life. Service to others is the test of love. There will be the biggest liquidation of labor in the history of the world in the next few years, and we must get ready to cope with the changed conditions. We must know where our money is being spent, and whether or not Bolshevism and the other 'isms that ruin life are working their way into our lives and government with the sole aim of destruction.

"The Kiwanis clubs should turn their attention to the aid of boys. Let the work of the girls be turned over to some other agency. Kiwanis can accomplish much for the boyhood of this nation," concluded the speaker.

Herman Nelson, one of the vice presidents of the Southwest Pacific Trust & Savings bank, spoke strongly in favor of the air port. "We will be using airplanes like we use autos in a few years," said Mr. Nelson, "and Glendale will be one of the big air ports in the west if we vote these bonds. I urge every one to vote for the air port and water bonds."

There are only a few tickets left for the Orpheus club concert April 14. Ole Andressen and other live wire members of the club have been selling tickets af a lively rate, Mr. Andressen selling around 50 himself. The Orpheus club, of which Mr. Andressen is a member, gave a concert at Orange Friday night, under the auspices of the American Legion and over 1600 tickets were sold. Glendale, besides having the big chorus and the Orpheus quartet will have two or more prominent soloists in the concert here on the 14th.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

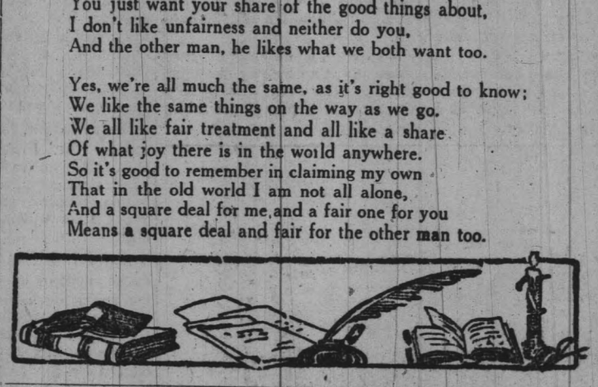
THE OTHER MAN'S SHARE

You like a fair chance as you travel your way,
A place in the sun as the diplomats say;
You like a kind word when you feel glum and low,
And your share of good things on the way as you go.
You want to be happy, it's right that you should,
Not all of the bad but a share of the good,
You want a square deal, that I know to be true,
And so, in his life, does the other man too.

If there's pie to be cut in the world anywhere
Of sunshine and gladness, you'd like your just share.
If there's friendship for having, I think you're like me,
You'd like to have just what your share ought to be.

When the table is spread and the feast is set out,
You just want your share of the good things about,
I don't like unfairness and neither do you,
And the other man, he likes what we both want too.

Yes, we're all much the same, as it's right good to know;
We like the same things on the way as we go.
We all like fair treatment and all like a share
Of what joy there is in the world anywhere.
So it's good to remember in claiming my own
That in the old world I am not all alone,
And a square deal for me and a fair one for you
Means a square deal and fair for the other man too.



COLOR ADDS SMARTNESS TO LUGGAGE

Even one's luggage must have a bit of color and suit cases of patent leather have corners and handles of red or blue. These are matched by small vanity cases lined with color and with a fine line of color on the outside.

HAVE YOU SENT IN YOUR FUN REVUE PARODY?

The offer of splendid prizes for the best parodies on two songs to be sung at the Fun Revue on the 19th and 20th of April, is beginning to attract great interest. Any man, woman or child may compete. Here is a complete list of the wonderful prizes offered through the generosity of Glendale merchants:

The Lewis Jewelry company offers the choice of any one of four articles, the choice being is follows: Gent's gold semi-precious stone ring, a mantel clock, set of 6 knives, forks and spoons, or ladies' silver mesh bag. Mr. Lewis will be glad to show these articles at any time.

The Wilson-Bell Hardware company offers a 11-piece set of Pyrex glass baking dishes.

The Whitaker Pharmacy offers a handsome bronze incense burner.

The Glendale Music store offers a leather music satchel.

The two songs so far for which prizes are offered for parodies are "Mister Gallagher and Mr. Shean," and "Barney Google."

The Glendale Music company will make a special window display of these songs next week, and will be glad to let anybody try out, read over or copy the words. Send in verses at once—get your friends to suggest topics, and watch your local newspaper to see if your verses appear. Winners will be announced and prizes distributed from the stage on the nights of performance.

Address verses to Community Players, care of local newspapers.

Oh, Mr. Gallagher, oh, Mr. Gallagher,
Once I heard you say a hotel was in sight,
Up on Broadway near the bank.
But am afraid you are a crank
And I thought perhaps your mind it wasn't right.

Oh, Mr. Shean, oh, Mr. Shean,
As I looked upon the place it should have been,
Then I said, "Now bless my soul,
It is the 'Glendale Bowl.'"
What? the hotel, Mr. Gallagher?
No, the hole, Mr. Shean.
(G. A. Gallagher, 505 N. Jackson Glendale).

Oh Mr. Gallagher, oh Mr. Gallagher,
Once I thought I heard your agonizing shout,
When your wife in accents bland
With a rosebush in her hand,
Said, "I wish you'd dig a hole and set it out."

Oh Mr. Shean, oh Mr. Shean,
As I looked upon the rosebush bright and green,
Then I said to my good Sally,
I will set it in the alley.
What? the rosebush, Mr. Gallagher?
No, the garbage can, Mr. Shean.
(G. A. Gallagher, 505 N. Jackson, Glendale).
